Drug enforcement agent addresses law officers

CHARLESTON — Tom Maher, agent in charge of Drug Enforcement Administration at St. Louis, was the featured speaker Wednesday night at the quarterly meeting of the Southeast Missouri Law Enforcement Association.

Approximately 60 law enforcement officers, representing six counties, attended the dinner meeting hosted by Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons and Charleston Police Chief Bob Ritchey at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

During the business meeting, presided over by Frankie W. Smith of the Cape Girardeau County sheriff's department, new officers were elected.

Elected were: Sgt. James A. Crites of the Cape Girardeau Police Department, president; Lt. Joe Stover of the Cape Girardeau Police Department, vice president; Deputy Sheriff Marvin Loechig of Cape Girardeau County, secretary-treasurer; and Lt. Glen Lampley, retired Missouri State Highway Patrol officer of Cape Girardeau, sergeant-at-arms.

The Drug Enforcement Administration in St. Louis was organized in July 1973, according to Maher, who said the program was the result of reorganization in the federal drug enforcement department.

The program, funded through the Law Enforcement Administration, is comprised of two groups. One is a compliance group which deals with legal regulations, and the other is an all-agent group or task force composed of police officers and drug agents.

"Our basic policy is to put agents where the drug problem is major and, at present, this is mainly in the St. Louis area," Maher said, adding that the northeastern judicial district and five Illinois counties, adjacent to St. Louis, are in the program area.

An image of the department created by the news media, which, according to Maher, has sometimes pictured them as wearing black boots and swastikas, has been overcome. The Collinsville, Ill., raids, the result of poor planning and poor management, according to Maher, contributed to this image.

Intregrity in law enforcement is another thing the administration is trying to accomplish, and this particularly applies to the St. Louis area, Maher said.

Punishment for use and possession of marijuana should be more uniform, he stated, emphasizing that there have been strong pros and cons voiced on the legalization of marijuana.

"I am strongly opposed to the legalization but there is a strong possibility that it will be legalized," he said.

During a brief question and answer period, Maher said most of the marijuana in the local area comes from Mexico and some from the island of Jamacia.

"Young people get together, pool their money and get someone to go to Mexico for it. The product is there and finding connections is easy, so there is no problem" he said, adding that organized groups work the same way.

Hard drugs, particularly heroin, are a major problem in the St. Louis area that is spreading to the county, he said, indicating that 90 per cent of the arrests made in that area are heroin related.

In closing, Maher informed the group that his office has no plans at this time for deploying agents out of St. Louis but offered the assistance of his department if the situation demanded it.

"Our manpower is simply inadequate to handle a drug problem in all the local areas but, should a significant traffic in drugs be involved, we will assist local officers, he said.

Law enforcement officers in the Poplar Bluff area will host the next meeting on April 16.

Demos expect prompt action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic congressional leaders told President Ford today they expect action within 90 days on key segments of his economic program, but voiced misgivings about his proposals for energy taxes and across-the-board tax rebates.

Senate Democratic whip Robert Byrd told reporters after Ford's White House breakfast with bipartisan congressional leaders that he thinks Congress may very well vote gasoline rationing instead of the conservation plan sought by the Republican President.

Ford formally presented his proposals to the Congress Wednesday, and House Democrats said afterwards they hoped to pass a tax cut within two months.

Byrd said Democratic leaders pledged at today's breakfast to move quickly but told Ford "as a matter of course there would be some changes" in his proposals.

Specifically, Byrd said concern was expressed about granting a tax rebate across the board rather than concentrating in lower and middle income levels.

He also said there is a growing consensus among Democrats that Ford's proposed $2-a-barrel tax on domestic and foreign crude oil would "lend additional fuel to the fires of inflation.

"I indicated my viewpoint that we ought to move to gasoline rationing," Byrd said. When asked whether Congress would pass a gasoline rationing plan, he responded, "I think it may very well do that."

Later, however, in response to questions, he declined to flatly predict passage of a mandatory rationing plan.

Ford asked for standby rationing authority.

Several Democrats said the measures outlined by Ford in a somber State of the Union speech Wednesday will fail to revitalize the slumping economy and will increase inflationary pressures by driving up the price of fuel.

For the most part, Republican lawmakers said Ford had faced up to the nation's problems and that it is now up to the heavily Democratic Congress to act. The views of House leaders were considered particularly significant because the Constitution requires all revenue legislation to originate there.

Most of Ford's proposals had been disclosed earlier in his nationally televised and broadcast speech Monday night and in briefings by White House officials.

His proposals included: —A two-stage tax reduction, including a 12 per cent rebate on 1974 taxes up to $1,000 plus a permanent lowering of tax rates, mostly for lower income families, starting this year;

—A package of energy taxes expected to raise fuel prices by 10 cents a gallon, and increased levies on windfall oil company profits;

—Refusal to propose any new domestic spending programs other than those devoted to energy research, and a vow to veto spending programs passed by Congress, and —A five per cent ceiling on federal pay increases and cost-of-living hikes for Social Security and other pension benefits paid by the federal government.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., incoming chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who already had endorsed a revised form of Ford's 12 per cent tax rebate plan on 1974 income, said he hoped for a House vote in March on a tax cut. However, he said the President's total package is inadequate to meet the nation's economic woes.

Armed bandits rob Dexter service station

DEXTER — A Fina service station on Highway 60 West was robbed of $220 at 1:19 a.m. today, according to Dexter police.

Denzil Morgan of Dexter was the attendant on duty when the station was held up by two men armed with a deer rifle.

The robbers left Morgan and his wife Diann, who also was at the station, locked in the trunk of Morgan's car several miles from the scene. They were able to free themselves and notified Dexter police.

The highway patrol picked up two suspects at their rural home, Russell Martin and Allen Martin.

Dexter police said Morgan identified the suspects.

Citizen band radios taken

Two citizens band radios and two speakers have been taken from automobiles this week, according to police, who said two other burglaries that occurred in late 1974 were reported Wednesday.

A citizens band radio was taken from a car belonging to Debbie Aduddell, 810 William St., while it was in the Sikeston High School parking lot between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The radio was valued at $140.

Another CB radio was taken from a car belonging to Ray Allen Kelley while parked in front of his home, 508 Carroll Ave., between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The radio was worth $190.

Steve Nowell, 618 Sikes Ave., told police two speakers worth $80. each were taken from his car while it was parked behind his home. The theft occured between midnight Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

Burglars took two light fixtures valued at $300 from the Central Constructors, Inc. warehouse at 525 Williams St. between Nov. 15 and Dec. 15.

B.R. Pickett, 859 Stanford Drive, told police a suede coat worth $170, 30 handkerchiefs worth $13 and two billiard balls (Nos. 5 and 13) worth $2 each, were taken from his house between Dec. 1 and Dec. 7.

Incomes outpaced by rising living costs

To what extent have rising living costs and bigger taxes offset or wiped out the income gains that Scott County workers have obtained in the last few years?

Where does the average local family stand today in the nip and tuck race between mounting costs and rising wages?

For a while, most families in the area were able to keep ahead of the game because their incomes were going up more rapidly than their living costs.

In three of the last five years, however, the reverse has been the case. The erosion of income was most pronounced in the past year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Nationally, it reports, although weekly earnings rose about seven per cent, on average, consumer prices surged by nearly 12 per cent. As a result, there was a loss of close to 5 per cent in net spendable income in the year.

A study by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit research organization, shows how inflation and higher taxes have been putting the squeeze on the family pocketbook.

In Scott County, on the basis of its figures, pay increases of less than 34 per cent in the last five years fell short of giving the average family the purchasing power it had with its smaller 1969 income.

As a result, local families that had an income of $7,500 in 1969, would have to be earning approximately $10,200 at this time to have the same purchasing power that they had then.

Those whose incomes were $10,000 previously would require close to $13,750 now to stay even. Families that were earning $12,500 five years ago would need about $17,300 to balance out.

For retired people in the local area who are living on fixed incomes and for the unemployed, the going is especially rough.

It is difficult also, for working men who have to provide for their families alone. That situation is less common than it was at one time, however, because married women have been entering the labor force in growing number, producing second incomes.

Over 41 per cent of the married women in Scott County are now holding down jobs, the latest figures indicate.

Sikeston to hire juvenile officer

Sikeston has been granted permission to hire a juvenile officer under a program sponsored by the governor's manpower planning office, according to City Manager Charles Church.

The juvenile officer's salary will be fully funded for one year by the program, which will be administered locally by the Division of Employment Security and Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

The officer may be paid up to $641 per month.

The man hired must be either unemployed or employed in a job lower than his qualifications, Church said.

The city has two weeks in which to make an appointment.

Sadat gives Israel 3 months to withdraw

By The Associated Press

A Beirut newspaper today quoted President Anwar Sadat of Egypt as setting a three-month deadline for withdrawal by Israel from some of the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian territory it occupies.

The paper, An Nahar, said Sadat told its interviewer that if the deadline is not met he will abandon Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempts to advance Israel and the Arabs toward a settlement.

Sadat also was quoted as saying he would go to war at once if Israel attacks Syria, Egypt's principal ally in the 1973 war, and that "Egypt will not be the sphere of influence for anyone. No to the Soviets and no to the Americans."

There was no official reaction from Israel but officials in Jerusalem said they considered Sadat's remarks serious. Well-informed Israelis said on the surface the deadline appeared unacceptable. But they pointed out that since the interview was to a Beirut newspaper, Sadat's statement could be meant for "internal consumption in the Arab world."

They also said Sadat could be expected to take a hard line at this juncture because Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon is in Washington conferring with Kissinger and other U.S. officials.

Allon has extended his Washington stay through Friday, an indication that Kissinger may be making headway toward an interim Middle East agreement. "The talks were conducted in a very friendly, very cordial atmosphere, without any pressures from anybody," Kissinger said Wednesday after a 1½-hour session with Allon.

Allon also expressed optimism, declaring: "It is high time to move from the preliminary stage to the practical phase, and I'm sure that all parties concerned will do their best to see to it that the political momentum in the Middle East will be revitalized as soon as possible."

In the An Nahar interview, Sadat said of the Egyptian, Syrian and Jordanian territory occupied by Israel, "I will accept nothing less than an Israeli move on all three fronts within three months."

"This is a decisive year because next year is an election year in America. If nothing is accomplished very soon, we will go to Geneva, all of us Arabs, including the Palestinians, and explode everything there."

Sadat said if the Geneva conference becomes the forum for Arab-Israeli negotiations, "it will have to be final and conclusive, not merely to discuss a few kilometers under disengagement agreements."

Kissinger contends that the propaganda warfare and publicity accompanying any such confrontation would freeze the positions of both the Arabs and the Israelis and prevent the compromises necessary to reach an agreement.

He also argues that a lasting peace settlement can only be achieved after a series of limited agreements that foster the gradual development of relations between the Arabs and Israelis and eventual acceptance by each side of the other's rights.

The Israeli military command said the raiding force early today clashed with a force of Arab guerrillas near the village of Shuba (Kfar Chouba), and four Arabs were killed and two Israelis were wounded.

Beans blown from stalks

First he got his crop in late, then an early frost stopped its growth and rains followed that prevented combining. If that wasn't enough, the high winds last week cleaned the soybeans off the stalks at R. L. Polley's farm on Route One. Polley said a 40-acre area was affected by the winds. The other day he brought in a total of 20 bushels of soybeans from 20 acres.

Now that ownership of gold in the United States is legal again, we suppose that the scoffers and critics of gold as a monetary metal and ultimate repository of value are congratulating themselves on the failure of any "gold rush" by Americans to develop so far. Since December 31 the price of the metal has declined somewhat, and those who bought initially have a paper loss on their investment. Score one for the anti-goldbugs.

We would point out, however, that the power of the government to influence the citizenry can be, over the short run, a very significant factor. And the power of government has certainly been marshaled in recent weeks to try and put a damper on enthusiasm for gold. Not directly, mind you. There has been no out and out exhortation not to buy. But the warnings of all the pitfalls — possible fraud, storage charges, taxes, dealer mark-ups, etc. — have all been well publicized. Furthermore, the public is on notice that the U.S. Government will be a factor on the supply side as a seller of gold from its own stockpile. This presumably, will act as a price depressant.

We don't quarrel per se with any of the cautionary advice being put out. Anyone contemplating the purchase of gold should be aware of all the costs and risks involved, including the risk that his own government may do its best to hold the price down.

And, of course, no one can tell you whether tomorrow's price will be higher or lower than today's. Gold will fluctuate according to the laws of supply and demand. If one is not financially and emotionally prepared for such fluctuations then he should not buy gold.

But we will make an observation or two. Paper currency is not money. It is only a claim on money. Money, if it is to fulfil its intended function as a medium of exchange, must have an intrinsic value of its own. Gold has fulfilled this function very well throughout history because of its inherent desirability The gold critics all have one thing in common. They want to divorce the money supply from gold or any other tangible standard of value. To do this, it is important to shatter the "mystique" of gold in the eyes of the public. If they succeed, "money" becomes entirely the plaything of politicians. Yes, politicians are advised by economists, but no two economists, it seems, ever entirely agree; and economic decisions are, in the last analysis, always political decisions.

Regarding the risk factor, we'd also like to point out that the government has been a bit derelict lately in pointing out to the buyers of its E bonds that, since there is no guarantee that the rate of inflation will not continue to exceed the rate of interest paid on the bonds, an absolute economic loss to the buyer will continue to be a very high probability. The buyer of gold at least has a chance to preserve his purchasing power.

Our government is now willing, but not anxious, to allow us to convert our paper to gold. Whether we do or not may depend on each individual's assessment of where to place his trust — in the wisdom of his politicians or in the lessons of history.

FINE IDEA, BUT NOT WORKING

The Reorganization plan for consolidating state offices at Jefferson City into a dozen or so instead of nearly a hundred sounded fine at the time the people of Missouri voted for it.

It provided an opportunity for a decrease in operational costs, according to its supporters, one of which was the Appeal, even though we had some doubts at the time.

It seems now that our doubts have been justified.

Instead of saving money and decreasing the number of people on the state payroll it has done just the opposite. In five months of "streamlining" under the reorganization bill the number of employees has jumped from 34,669 to 35,989 and there seems to be more to come.

What has actually happened is that a new group of Super-Directors has been hired to direct the Directors of the various departments, and no department staff has been decreased in numbers, it now appears.

Sometimes, it seems the taxpayers just can't win, even if they vote for what they think is economy and efficiency in government. The results of the Reorganization bill reminds us of the proposal of former State Senator Basey Vanlandingham, who wanted to consolidate counties, creating super-officers in each area, yet retaining deputies in each of the present county offices, all at high or higher salaries. The Appeal editor and county officials figured that one, and it would have cost our county an additional $30,000 to $35,000 in salaries alone. Luckly, it was not adopted, and we hope it never is.

Jefferson City — Missouri state government distributed a stack of publicity handouts and speeches 7 feet, 11 inches high in 1974.

Reporters in Jefferson City received a record number of news releases last year from various branches and agencies of state government.

The number of news releases and promotional handouts was greater in 1974 than in 1973 even though Gov. Christopher Bond closed his controversial centralized publicity operation, the Missouri Information Service.

CUT WHAT? The Federal Government occupies about 10,000 buildings-3,000 it owns and 7,000 rented from private owners. To curb proliferating requests for more space, each agency will be required to budget for rent and pay it to the new Public Buildings Fund. The General Services Administration estimated rental collections at going rates for the 266 million square feet of government-owned and leased space at $1.2 billion. Since a considerable part of the total cost comes from "rent" the government will pay itself, the House Appropriations Committee has already "cut" the rent by 10 percent and sees room for further cuts.

ADVERTISING AND FREEDOM

A new 333-page study of Federal Trade Commission hearings recommends that the FTC expand its regulation of the advertising industry. Before this happens, it might be well to get back to some basics of the free market system, of which advertising is an integral part. It informs consumers of prices, new products, tells them where to buy what they want at a price they can pay. It creates the competitive atmosphere in which producers of goods and services as well as retailers must exert their ingenuity to attract business and produce the things that people need or want.

The necessity to advertise and sell products provides the revenue that supports an independent press-radio, TV, newspapers and magazines. Governments can rule a country without such a press but individual freedom and opportunity, which remain the most priceless ingredient of worthwhile human life, have never in all history existed long without it.

SOME FACTS AMERICAN PEOPLE NEED TO KNOW ABOUT UN

More Americans are having second-thoughts about the future of the United Nations after observing the Communist- Arab - Third World lineup, and the following information about the UN won't help this situation either.

Approximately 7,000 international bureaucrats are on the payrolls of the various UN offices located in Geneva, Switzerland. On Friday, November 29, these citizens of the world staged a half-day general strike in support of their demand for higher pay and pensions.

Meanwhile, the official representatives of member governments in the UN and its agencies had just received what diplomats call an aide-memoire from, of all sources, the United States UN mission. This document declares straight out what everyone in the UN has long known but no one ever mentions in public: that the "remuneration" of the UN staff is "too high by any reasonable standard." The pay scales are already 18 to 41 per cent higher than those of the U.S. Civil Service. The proposed increase would upp the UN scale to 31 to 56 per cent higher than the U.S. Moreover, "UN remuneration has continually kept pace with inflation by means of the post-adjustment system, whereby employes are automatically compensated for each five index points the cost of living rises in their cities of residence (no worries about inflation in UN country)...The salaries of Civil Services in headquarters cities other than New York are half, or less, of the pay rates of the UN."

Noting that large additional expenditures are "incompatible with the UN's serious financial situation," the U.S. Government "believes" (read, "hopes"). The aide-memoire concludes, that the member governments "will wish to instruct their delegations in New York to oppose the UN salary increase, both in the UN's administrative and budgetary committees and in the UN General Assembly." Oh yes, and UN pay, if you are not aware, is exempt from income taxes.

Since U.S. taxpayers cough up around 25 per cent or more of the UN's total assessment to its numerous members (some members are still delinquent), we might like to let our representatives in Congress know how we feel about the United Nations and the money we are giving to same.

GOVERNMENT'S PUBLISHER LEAVES FEW TITLES UNTURNED

As a publisher, the Federal government can stir the most dormant curiosity or accommodate the most offbeat interest, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

Where but in the monthly United States Government Publications booklet, for example, could you find (August issue) the opportunity to get hard facts on "Two-bedroom Apartments Over Garage"?

And only the hyper-uncurious would not want to see what the "Report to the President on Investigation 22-39" has to say — about cheddar cheese.

A recent catalog also offers Soviet studies under a joint exchange program. If you have no interest in "Whales and Dolphins," or "Transmission of Information Under Water," you may be roused by "Risk, Conflict and Uncertainty in Decision-Making and Its Simulation."

The Government Printing Office can intrigue you even more in listing works in process of production. The catalog gives some of these as: "Are You Planning on Living ... the Rest of Your Life?", "Descriptive List of Treasure Maps and Charts in the Library of Congress," and "Evolutionary and Physical Properties of Meteoroids."

Tax Foundation says theGPO has been printing away since 1860. Through mail orders and government bookstores it offer more than 25,000 publications originating in various Federal agencies or in Congress. Selected publications are also available in over 540 libraries throughout the country.

For fiscal 1974, the GPO's estimated budget authority was $112.9 million. This will go to an estimated $151.7 million in fiscal 1975. Ten years ago, the 1965 budget was $70.3 million.

Many GPO printings cost 25 cents, but the price can go to several dollars.

THE CRISIS IS THAT NO ONE BELIEVES IT

Is there an energy crisis or isn't there? Or was there ever one?

A survey last summer by the Federal Energy Administration found that 90 per cent of the people queried felt the energy crisis was either over, nonexistent or manufactured by the oil companies.

Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is among those who believe that drastic measures are needed to make Americans realize that there is, indeed, an energy crisis. Charging that President Ford's reliance on voluntary conservation is bound to prove inadequate, he calls, for "a sizable tax on gasoline, or on imported oil or on automobiles according to their weight or horsepower" to discourage U.S. consumptionn of oil.

The energy crisis has "never been more serious," says William W. Boeschenstein, president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. He recently called upon the nation's architects, engineers and professionals in related fields to "alert the American people to the reality of the situation and mobilize them to take immediate defensive measures."

Boeschenstein spoke at the third Owens-Corning Energy Conservation Awards dinner, the finale of an annual competition that recognizes architects, engineers and owners of buildings who have made advances in conserving energy.

On the one hand, there are grounds for confidence, he said. The nation's total use of energy is projected to decline this year for the first time since 1958.

But the negative side of the picture may well be stronger: Demand for imported oil began to swing upward again in September and consumption of motor gasoline is running 25 to 30 per cent ahead of last winter.

The technology needed to do the job is already in existence, said Boeschenstein. What is lacking is a sense of urgency, and the only ones who can create it are those who understand the problem -- "who have a practical, working knowledge of how bad things really are."

Significantly, however, for the first time in the history of the awards, the judges found no winners in the industrial and commercial building design categories, which account for 70 per cent of the energy consumed in the United States.

If those who know "how bad things really are" are not yet possessed by a sense of urgency, little wonder that the rest of the population is going about the business of energy consumption pretty much as usual.

VIETNAM NOSTALGIA

WASHINGTON — Henry Simpkin, who has a business called Nostalgia, Inc., called the other day and said, "We're bringing back the Vietnamese war."

"So early?" I said.

"It's the right time," he assured me. "People long for the good old days when we were fighting the Communist peril in the rice paddies of Asia. We need something to take our minds off inflation and recession. What better diversion than getting involved in Indochina again?"

"I don't know, Simpkin. Are you sure the American people want to be reminded of Vietnam so soon after we got out?"

"Listen, the President isn't asking for our boys to go back in again. All he wants is for Congress to allot hundreds of millions of dollars to help prevent the Viet Cong from taking over the freedom-loving government of President Thieu."

"Do my ears deceive me?" I said. "I think President Ford is playing our song. It seems like only yesterday we were dancing to the same tune at President Johnson's Inaugural Ball."

"Of course, we'll have to send in advisers to help the South Vietnamese. But don't worry, the President has no intention of committing any American boys to fight a war 6,000 miles away from home."

"Simpkin," I said, "I think you've got a hit. It's almost like being there again."

"Remember when we anchored the fleet off the Gulf of Tonkin and the North Vietnamese shot a torpedo at one of our destroyers?"

"How could I forget it?"

"Well, guess where I'm going to put the fleet now?"

"Off the coast of Indochina?"

"You better believe it. When you're going in for nostalgia, you have to be authentic or people won't buy the period."

"You've re-created the whole thing down to the naval task force," I told my friend in amazement.

"And I've got the Pentagon and White House lying again, just like the old days. They said we weren't flying any missions over Vietnam or Cambodia."

"It reminds me of the early Sixties," I said.

"Guess what I'm also bringing back?" Simpkin said.

"Bob Hope?"

"Better than Bob Hope. I'm bringing back dominoes."

"I almost forgot about dominoes!" I said excitedly.

"It was the most popular game during the Vietnamese war. You lined them up and if one went down, the next one fell and so on and so forth until they all fell."

"The old domino theory," I chuckled. "I have a box of them in the attic which I saved with my light at the end of the tunnel."

"This could be the biggest nostalgia kick the country has ever gone through," Simpkin told me.

"We also hope to bring back the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

"The Ho Chi Minh Trail," I said, picking up my guitar and strumming the first few bars.

"And incursions and peace with honor and all the great phrases that people used to love from the period. The President might even ask for a new draft and then we'll organize demonstrations on the campuses. You can't have a nostalgic feeling about the war in Indochina without campus demonstrations."

"Simpkin, you've thought of everything."

"D o you know if we don't fight 'em in Vietnam, we'll be fighting them on the beaches of Hawaii?"

"I think so," I said. "Could you hum the first line and I'll pick it up on the chorus."

Could Disrupt Nation: Tiny Group of Strategic Union Workers May Cripple Rail System Midnight Jan. 23

WASHINGTON--There's a general sentiment these days a railroad train is a costly toy, an expensive hobby, a cowboy and Indian movie relic or a commuter's rolling black box. It isn't. The railroads are especially vital to our economy right now. A two or three week railroad strike would cripple this nation. And there could be such a crisis beginning 12:01 a.m. Jan. 24.

Especially damaging would be paralysis on the coal hauling line or on the long runs west of the Mississippi.

Railroad workers are like miners. One picket shows up and entire terminals, yards and shops go dead.

There's one union, the Sheet Metal Workers International Assn., which plans just such a picketing operation a second after midnight Jan. 23. And Jerry Ford will run into the first major labor crisis of his still brief presidency. And there are more to come since the honeymoon is over.

For a moment let's skip the basic issues of the union dispute with the hundred or so Class One American rail lines. There's a more important principle--and that is, should a comparative handful of men, 5,000 in this case, led by one perennially powerful official, have the strength to shut down a nation's transport system?

The official, J. Wally O'Brien, who is right out of the high button shoe era, is general vice president for railroads in the Sheet Metal Workers International. He heads a tiny unit of 5,000 of the international union's 153,000 members. He's a great one for selective strikes. This time he has picked five strategic railroads to hit. These include some who carry a considerable amount of fuel in this energy-parched country.

There are in all 17 major unions now negotiating with the lines for a membership of some 500,000. Thus O'Brien with but 1 per cent of the work force can touch off a chain reaction which could paralyze the country for a few days or a few weeks. Who knows? The court could intervene with an injunction. So could the Congress with a special law.

O'Brien's strategy is simple. He pulls out his men that night if he can't force the railroads into a heavy settlement of his demands--which would give his people far more than the other unions have gotten. Then the railroad management will retaliate, as it already has promised, by banning all sheet metal work in the shops, on all lines. So O'Brien will picket all other lines. These pickets will be respected by the other 16 unions. Result: no rail traffic anywhere.

Depots would clog. Freight on docks would pile up and slowly strangle the waterfronts. Point is that the sheet metal union has the right to strike since it has passed through all the cooling off periods.

All of which puts O'Brien in the control box. You can't say his demands are wild. They're too vague. They could be wilder. He just tells the management, it is reported, that he wants a substantial bonus for his 5,000 men. For what? To make up for the erosion by inflation of purchasing power since mid-1973. They've been bargaining that long

Note, however, that the other unions settled this 1973-74 contract a long time ago. Thus what O'Brien wants is more than any other union got. He wants the increase they won--and a bonus to boot. Also a cost-of-living clause. And a wage increase.

Now mind you, this would simply cover the mid-1973 to Jan. 1, 1975, contract. The other unions are negotiating a new 1975 pact having long ago completed their mid-1973 to 1975 contract. So O'Brien really wants to get more than the other labor leaders got before he begins discussing the new pact for another year.

Certainly this gets as intricate as it gets icky. It's business as usual, it seems to me, with a union chief who has the power to unsettle the nation, distract the President, disturb the Congress during a period as critical because of the petrodollar war as was the big shooting war. Less bloody perhaps, but more dangerous. Some of the railroads are bankrupt. Some are running close indeed to the red-ink line. America's distributive system is the liteline of our own survival and the artery of food and other supplies which keeps many smaller nations breathing.

Any disruption of the rail system would quickly force a waterfront embargo as freight could not move inland nor wheat or coal or other foodstuffs outward bound. There could be interference with oil shipments.

Yet O'Brien makes his stand as he has for years. He has defied other presidents in pretty nasty terms.

There are many local and second-echelon labor leaders such as O'Brien. No one denies he has the "interest" of his men at heart. But are these interests also the interests of all the people, or even all the railroad workers? Are they relevant with the times? Or are they the dictates of a handful of sheet metal workers who know that within our system, our mores, our tradition and post-New Deal-conditioned reflex that every picket is really right?

Well, O'Brien may have his strike. The rail lines may be forced to capitulate. The people may be forced to pay more for their food and goods. No one wants railway and commuter traffic snarled.

But it's this sort of labor leaderhip which slowly angers the citizenry, alienates them against all unions, and someday may well provoke the people into crippling labor in turn.

DEA HIGH JINKS
By JACK ANDERSON
With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--The nation's top narcotics officials have been so busy investigating one another lately that they haven't had much time to cope with the dope peddlers.

Charges are hanging over the heads of the top executives at the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

The practice has been to turn over the slightest allegations to the inspectors to check out. Those who enforce the drug laws, the reasoning goes, should be so clean they can never become vulnerable to blackmail.

Now narcotics chief John Bartels has complained privately that his underlings have used investigations to blackmail one another. Cases have been held open, he has charged, as a "management tool" to keep officials in line.

Here are some of the charges that are flying around DEA headquarters:

--Acting Deputy Administrator Jerry Jenson, the No. 2 man, was accused of corruption, excessive drinking and loose morals. An FBI investigation completely cleared him. But Jenson has not been told that he was also exonerated by DEA. The charges continued to be held over his head.

--Enforcements chief William Durkin, the No. 3 man, was accused of consorting with a New York prostitute. The alleged incident dated back to 1956, yet the case still remains open. Durkin heard rumors about the accusation, but he was never confronted openly until we questioned him. He flatly denied the incident.

--An exhaustive investigation was launched into charges that public affairs chief Vincent Promuto, the No. 4 man, associated intimately with convicted gamblers, romanced a "$100-a-throw prostitute" and revealed the identity of a DEA informant to a night club operator with underworld connections. We have read through the thick investigative file, which simply does not substantiate the charges.

--It was whispered that two former high officials, Acting Deputy Director Andrew Tartaglino and Acting Chief Inspector George Brosan, were relieved of their duties and reassigned "make work" projects because they refused to call off the Promuto investigation. Tartaglino complained to the Justice Department, which sent the FBI to investigate the investigation.

--The new chief inspector who succeeded Brosan, Philip Smith, also has been under investigation. He was accused of approving a Las Vegas, Nev., caper known inside the agency as "Operation Silver Dollar." Drug agents, posing as big rollers to gain the confidence of Mafia gamblers, accepted at least $20,000 from billionaire Howard Hughes to squander on the gambling table. Smith has been exonerated.

--A confidential DEA study describes a shocking yet unresolved case against a supervisor, who is not identified. He has been implicated, according to the study, in the "murder of CI (confidential informant)" and the "sale of narcctics to CI." Yet after years of investigation, it hasn't been determined whether or not he is guilty.

--The confidential study tells of another unidentified supervisor who was accused in 1972 of selling information from the DEA's investigative files to some drug defendants. This case, too, is still hanging fire.

--Still another top official, according to the DEA study, wrecked an official government vehicle in 1971. He was accused of drunken driving with a "woman companion," but no disposition has been made of the case.

We have spent more than two months digging out the story of the dissention that has virtually paralyzed the DEA's top command. Our associate Bob Owens has interviewed DEA employes at every level. We have also had access to the agency's investigative reports, management studies and other secret files.

The trouble began 18 months ago when the Drug Enforcement Administration was first created. Four rival narcotics agencies, which had been feuding with one another, were merged into a single, new unit.

But instead of stopping the feuds, the reorganization simply brought them under the same roof. The continuing power struggle reached a climax before Christmas with the three-month old investigation of Promuto, which was launched while Administrator Bartels was out of the country.

A December 20 telex message went out to DEA posts throughout the world, declaring tersely: "Andrew C. Tartaglino...George B. Brosan...relieved of all other responsibilities and detailed to me for special assignment."

The Promuto case, Bartels told us, was the last straw. He ordered the reassignment, he said, because of a history of sloppy and unethical investigations.

Sources in the inspection unit charge, however, that Bartels was protecting Promuto because of personal friendship. According to statements taken by the two senior FBI agents assigned to check on DEA's handling of the case, Bartels has demanded constant progress reports on the case and withheld information from his own investigators.

Now Sen. Henry Jackson's, D-Wash., Investigations Subcommittee is preparing a probe for the inspection unit.

SHOULD YOU BUY GOLD?

Now that ownership of gold in the United States is legal again, we suppose that the scoffers and critics of gold as a monetary metal and ultimate repository of value are congratulating themselves on the failure of any "gold rush" by Americans to develop so far. Since December 31 the price of the metal has declined somewhat, and those who bought initially have a paper loss on their investment. Score one for the anti-goldbugs.

We would point out, however, that the power of the government to influence the citizenry can be, over the short run, a very significant factor. And the power of government has certainly been marshaled in recent weeks to try and put a damper on enthusiasm for gold. Not directly, mind you. There has been no out and out exhortation not to buy. But the warnings of all the pitfalls — possible fraud, storage charges, taxes, dealer mark-ups, etc. — have all been well publicized. Furthermore, the public is on notice that the U.S. Government will be a factor on the supply side as a seller of gold from its own stockpile. This presumably, will act as a price depressant.

We don't quarrel per se with any of the cautionary advice being put out. Anyone contemplating the purchase of gold should be aware of all the costs and risks involved, including the risk that his own government may do its best to hold the price down.

And, of course, no one can tell you whether tomorrow's price will be higher or lower than today's. Gold will fluctuate according to the laws of supply and demand. If one is not financially and emotionally prepared for such fluctuations then he should not buy gold.

But we will make an observation or two. Paper currency is not money. It is only a claim on money. Money, if it is to fulfil its intended function as a medium of exchange, must have an intrinsic value of its own. Gold has fulfilled this function very well throughout history because of its inherent desirability The gold critics all have one thing in common. They want to divorce the money supply from gold or any other tangible standard of value. To do this, it is important to shatter the "mystique" of gold in the eyes of the public. If they succeed, "money" becomes entirely the plaything of politicians. Yes, politicians are advised by economists, but no two economists, it seems, ever entirely agree; and economic decisions are, in the last analysis, always political decisions.

Regarding the risk factor, we'd also like to point out that the government has been a bit derelict lately in pointing out to the buyers of its E bonds that, since there is no guarantee that the rate of inflation will not continue to exceed the rate of interest paid on the bonds, an absolute economic loss to the buyer will continue to be a very high probability. The buyer of gold at least has a chance to preserve his purchasing power.

Our government is now willing, but not anxious, to allow us to convert our paper to gold. Whether we do or not may depend on each individual's assessment of where to place his trust — in the wisdom of his politicians or in the lessons of history.

FINE IDEA, BUT NOT WORKING

The Reorganization plan for consolidating state offices at Jefferson City into a dozen or so instead of nearly a hundred sounded fine at the time the people of Missouri voted for it.

It provided an opportunity for a decrease in operational costs, according to its supporters, one of which was the Appeal, even though we had some doubts at the time.

It seems now that our doubts have been justified.

Instead of saving money and decreasing the number of people on the state payroll it has done just the opposite. In five months of "streamlining" under the reorganization bill the number of employees has jumped from 34,669 to 35,989 and there seems to be more to come.

What has actually happened is that a new group of Super-Directors has been hired to direct the Directors of the various departments, and no department staff has been decreased in numbers, it now appears.

Sometimes, it seems the taxpayers just can't win, even if they vote for what they think is economy and efficiency in government. The results of the Reorganization bill reminds us of the proposal of former State Senator Basey Vanlandingham, who wanted to consolidate counties, creating super-officers in each area, yet retaining deputies in each of the present county offices, all at high or higher salaries. The Appeal editor and county officials figured that one, and it would have cost our county an additional $30,000 to $35,000 in salaries alone. Luckly, it was not adopted, and we hope it never is.

HEAVY READING

From the Jefferson City Bureau

Jefferson City — Missouri state government distributed a stack of publicity handouts and speeches 7 feet, 11 inches high in 1974.

Reporters in Jefferson City received a record number of news releases last year from various branches and agencies of state government.

The number of news releases and promotional handouts was greater in 1974 than in 1973 even though Gov. Christopher Bond closed his controversial centralized publicity operation, the Missouri Information Service.

CUT WHAT? The Federal Government occupies about 10,000 buildings-3,000 it owns and 7,000 rented from private owners. To curb proliferating requests for more space, each agency will be required to budget for rent and pay it to the new Public Buildings Fund. The General Services Administration estimated rental collections at going rates for the 266 million square feet of government-owned and leased space at $1.2 billion. Since a considerable part of the total cost comes from "rent" the government will pay itself, the House Appropriations Committee has already "cut" the rent by 10 percent and sees room for further cuts.

ADVERTISING AND FREEDOM

A new 333-page study of Federal Trade Commission hearings recommends that the FTC expand its regulation of the advertising industry. Before this happens, it might be well to get back to some basics of the free market system, of which advertising is an integral part. It informs consumers of prices, new products, tells them where to buy what they want at a price they can pay. It creates the competitive atmosphere in which producers of goods and services as well as retailers must exert their ingenuity to attract business and produce the things that people need or want.

The necessity to advertise and sell products provides the revenue that supports an independent press—radio, TV, newspapers and magazines. Governments can rule a country without such a press but individual freedom and opportunity, which remain the most priceless ingredient of worthwhile human life, have never in all history existed long without it.

SOME FACTS AMERICAN PEOPLE NEED TO KNOW ABOUT UN

More Americans are having second-thoughts about the future of the United Nations after observing the Communist- Arab - Third World lineup, and the following information about the UN won't help this situation either.

Approximately 7,000 international bureaucrats are on the payrolls of the various UN offices located in Geneva, Switzerland. On Friday, November 29, these citizens of the world staged a half-day general strike in support of their demand for higher pay and pensions.

Meanwhile, the official representatives of member governments in the UN and its agencies had just received what diplomats call an aide-memoire from, of all sources, the United States UN mission. This document declares straight out what everyone in the UN has long known but no one ever mentions in public: that the "remuneration" of the UN staff is "too high by any reasonable standard." The pay scales are already 18 to 41 per cent higher than those of the U.S. Civil Service. The proposed increase would upp the UN scale to 31 to 56 per cent higher than the U.S. Moreover, "UN remuneration has continually kept pace with inflation by means of the post-adjustment system, whereby employes are automatically compensated for each five index points the cost of living rises in their cities of residence (no worries about inflation in UN country)...The salaries of Civil Services in headquarters cities other than New York are half, or less, of the pay rates of the UN."

Noting that large additional expenditures are "incompatible with the UN's serious financial situation," the U.S. Government "believes" (read, "hopes"). The aide-memoire concludes, that the member governments "will wish to instruct their delegations in New York to oppose the UN salary increase, both in the UN's administrative and budgetary committees and in the UN General Assembly." Oh yes, and UN pay, if you are not aware, is exempt from income taxes.

Since U.S. taxpayers cough up around 25 per cent or more of the UN's total assessment to its numerous members (some members are still delinquent), we might like to let our representatives in Congress know how we feel about the United Nations and the money we are giving to same.

GOVERNMENT'S PUBLISHER LEAVES FEW TITLES UNTURNED

As a publisher, the Federal government can stir the most dormant curiosity or accommodate the most offbeat interest, says Tax Foundation, Inc.

Where but in the monthly United States Government Publications booklet, for example, could you find (August issue) the opportunity to get hard facts on "Two-bedroom Apartments Over Garage"?

And only the hyper-uncurious would not want to see what the "Report to the President on Investigation 22-39" has to say — about cheddar cheese.

A recent catalog also offers Soviet studies under a joint exchange program. If you have no interest in "Whales and Dolphins," or "Transmission of Information Under Water," you may be roused by "Risk, Conflict and Uncertainty in Decision-Making and Its Simulation."

The Government Printing Office can intrigue you even more in listing works in process of production. The catalog gives some of these as: "Are You Planning on Living ... the Rest of Your Life?", "Descriptive List of Treasure Maps and Charts in the Library of Congress," and "Evolutionary and Physical Properties of Meteoroids."

Tax Foundation says theGPO has been printing away since 1860. Through mail orders and government bookstores it offer more than 25,000 publications originating in various Federal agencies or in Congress. Selected publications are also available in over 540 libraries throughout the country.

For fiscal 1974, the GPO's estimated budget authority was $112.9 million. This will go to an estimated $151.7 million in fiscal 1975. Ten years ago, the 1965 budget was $70.3 million.

Many GPO printings cost 25 cents, but the price can go to several dollars.

THE CRISIS IS THAT NO ONE BELIEVES IT

Is there an energy crisis or isn't there? Or was there ever one?

A survey last summer by the Federal Energy Administration found that 90 per cent of the people queried felt the energy crisis was either over, nonexistent or manufactured by the oil companies.

Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, is among those who believe that drastic measures are needed to make Americans realize that there is, indeed, an energy crisis. Charging that President Ford's reliance on voluntary conservation is bound to prove inadequate, he calls, for "a sizable tax on gasoline, or on imported oil or on automobiles according to their weight or horsepower" to discourage U.S. consumptionn of oil.

The energy crisis has "never been more serious," says William W. Boeschenstein, president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. He recently called upon the nation's architects, engineers and professionals in related fields to "alert the American people to the reality of the situation and mobilize them to take immediate defensive measures."

Boeschenstein spoke at the third Owens-Corning Energy Conservation Awards dinner, the finale of an annual competition that recognizes architects, engineers and owners of buildings who have made advances in conserving energy.

On the one hand, there are grounds for confidence, he said. The nation's total use of energy is projected to decline this year for the first time since 1958.

But the negative side of the picture may well be stronger: Demand for imported oil began to swing upward again in September and consumption of motor gasoline is running 25 to 30 per cent ahead of last winter.

The technology needed to do the job is already in existence, said Boeschenstein. What is lacking is a sense of urgency, and the only ones who can create it are those who understand the problem -- "who have a practical, working knowledge of how bad things really are."

Significantly, however, for the first time in the history of the awards, the judges found no winners in the industrial and commercial building design categories, which account for 70 per cent of the energy consumed in the United States.

If those who know "how bad things really are" are not yet possessed by a sense of urgency, little wonder that the rest of the population is going about the business of energy consumption pretty much as usual.

VIETNAM NOSTALGIA

WASHINGTON — Henry Simpkin, who has a business called Nostalgia, Inc., called the other day and said, "We're bringing back the Vietnamese war."

"So early?" I said.

"It's the right time," he assured me. "People long for the good old days when we were fighting the Communist peril in the rice paddies of Asia. We need something to take our minds off inflation and recession. What better diversion than getting involved in Indochina again?"

"I don't know, Simpkin. Are you sure the American people want to be reminded of Vietnam so soon after we got out?"

"Listen, the President isn't asking for our boys to go back in again. All he wants is for Congress to allot hundreds of millions of dollars to help prevent the Viet Cong from taking over the freedom-loving government of President Thieu."

"Do my ears deceive me?" I said. "I think President Ford is playing our song. It seems like only yesterday we were dancing to the same tune at President Johnson's Inaugural Ball."

"Of course, we'll have to send in advisers to help the South Vietnamese. But don't worry, the President has no intention of committing any American boys to fight a war 6,000 miles away from home."

"Simpkin," I said, "I think you've got a hit. It's almost like being there again."

"Remember when we anchored the fleet off the Gulf of Tonkin and the North Vietnamese shot a torpedo at one of our destroyers?"

"How could I forget it?"

"Well, guess where I'm going to put the fleet now?"

"Off the coast of Indochina?"

"You better believe it. When you're going in for nostalgia, you have to be authentic or people won't buy the period."

"You've re-created the whole thing down to the naval task force," I told my friend in amazement.

"And I've got the Pentagon and White House lying again, just like the old days. They said we weren't flying any missions over Vietnam or Cambodia."

"It reminds me of the early Sixties," I said.

"Guess what I'm also bringing back?" Simpkin said.

"Bob Hope?"

"Better than Bob Hope. I'm bringing back dominoes."

"I almost forgot about dominoes!" I said excitedly.

"It was the most popular game during the Vietnamese war. You lined them up and if one went down, the next one fell and so on and so forth until they all fell."

"The old domino theory," I chuckled. "I have a box of them in the attic which I saved with my light at the end of the tunnel."

"This could be the biggest nostalgia kick the country has ever gone through," Simpkin told me.

"We also hope to bring back the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

"The Ho Chi Minh Trail," I said, picking up my guitar and strumming the first few bars.

"And incursions and peace with honor and all the great phrases that people used to love from the period. The President might even ask for a new draft and then we'll organize demonstrations on the campuses. You can't have a nostalgic feeling about the war in Indochina without campus demonstrations."

"Simpkin, you've thought of everything."

"D o you know if we don't fight 'em in Vietnam, we'll be fighting them on the beaches of Hawaii?"

"I think so," I said. "Could you hum the first line and I'll pick it up on the chorus."

Could Disrupt Nation: Tiny Group of Strategic Union Workers May Cripple Rail System Midnight Jan. 23

WASHINGTON--There's a general sentiment these days a railroad train is a costly toy, an expensive hobby, a cowboy and Indian movie relic or a commuter's rolling black box. It isn't. The railroads are especially vital to our economy right now. A two or three week railroad strike would cripple this nation. And there could be such a crisis beginning 12:01 a.m. Jan. 24.

Especially damaging would be paralysis on the coal hauling line or on the long runs west of the Mississippi.

Railroad workers are like miners. One picket shows up and entire terminals, yards and shops go dead.

There's one union, the Sheet Metal Workers International Assn., which plans just such a picketing operation a second after midnight Jan. 23. And Jerry Ford will run into the first major labor crisis of his still brief presidency. And there are more to come since the honeymoon is over.

For a moment let's skip the basic issues of the union dispute with the hundred or so Class One American rail lines. There's a more important principle--and that is, should a comparative handful of men, 5,000 in this case, led by one perennially powerful official, have the strength to shut down a nation's transport system?

The official, J. Wally O'Brien, who is right out of the high button shoe era, is general vice president for railroads in the Sheet Metal Workers International. He heads a tiny unit of 5,000 of the international union's 153,000 members. He's a great one for selective strikes. This time he has picked five strategic railroads to hit. These include some who carry a considerable amount of fuel in this energy-parched country.

There are in all 17 major unions now negotiating with the lines for a membership of some 500,000. Thus O'Brien with but 1 per cent of the work force can touch off a chain reaction which could paralyze the country for a few days or a few weeks. Who knows? The court could intervene with an injunction. So could the Congress with a special law.

O'Brien's strategy is simple. He pulls out his men that night if he can't force the railroads into a heavy settlement of his demands--which would give his people far more than the other unions have gotten. Then the railroad management will retaliate, as it already has promised, by banning all sheet metal work in the shops, on all lines. So O'Brien will picket all other lines. These pickets will be respected by the other 16 unions. Result: no rail traffic anywhere.

Depots would clog. Freight on docks would pile up and slowly strangle the waterfronts. Point is that the sheet metal union has the right to strike since it has passed through all the cooling off periods.

All of which puts O'Brien in the control box. You can't say his demands are wild. They're too vague. They could be wilder. He just tells the management, it is reported, that he wants a substantial bonus for his 5,000 men. For what? To make up for the erosion by inflation of purchasing power since mid-1973. They've been bargaining that long

Note, however, that the other unions settled this 1973-74 contract a long time ago. Thus what O'Brien wants is more than any other union got. He wants the increase they won--and a bonus to boot. Also a cost-of-living clause. And a wage increase.

Now mind you, this would simply cover the mid-1973 to Jan. 1, 1975, contract. The other unions are negotiating a new 1975 pact having long ago completed their mid-1973 to 1975 contract. So O'Brien really wants to get more than the other labor leaders got before he begins discussing the new pact for another year.

Certainly this gets as intricate as it gets icky. It's business as usual, it seems to me, with a union chief who has the power to unsettle the nation, distract the President, disturb the Congress during a period as critical because of the petrodollar war as was the big shooting war. Less bloody perhaps, but more dangerous. Some of the railroads are bankrupt. Some are running close indeed to the red-ink line. America's distributive system is the liteline of our own survival and the artery of food and other supplies which keeps many smaller nations breathing.

Any disruption of the rail system would quickly force a waterfront embargo as freight could not move inland nor wheat or coal or other foodstuffs outward bound. There could be interference with oil shipments.

Yet O'Brien makes his stand as he has for years. He has defied other presidents in pretty nasty terms.

There are many local and second-echelon labor leaders such as O'Brien. No one denies he has the "interest" of his men at heart.

But are these interests also the interests of all the people, or even all the railroad workers? Are they relevant with the times? Or are they the dictates of a handful of sheet metal workers who know that within our system, our mores, our tradition and post-New Deal-conditioned reflex that every picket is really right?

Well, O'Brien may have his strike. The rail lines may be forced to capitulate. The people may be forced to pay more for their food and goods. No one wants railway and commuter traffic snarled.

But it's this sort of labor leaderhip which slowly angers the citizenry, alienates them against all unions, and someday may well provoke the people into crippling labor in turn.

DEA HIGH JINKS

By JACK ANDERSON

With Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--The nation's top narcotics officials have been so busy investigating one another lately that they haven't had much time to cope with the dope peddlers.

Charges are hanging over the heads of the top executives at the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

The practice has been to turn over the slightest allegations to the inspectors to check out. Those who enforce the drug laws, the reasoning goes, should be so clean they can never become vulnerable to blackmail.

Now narcotics chief John Bartels has complained privately that his underlings have used investigations to blackmail one another. Cases have been held open, he has charged, as a "management tool" to keep officials in line.

Here are some of the charges that are flying around DEA headquarters:

--Acting Deputy Administrator Jerry Jenson, the No. 2 man, was accused of corruption, excessive drinking and loose morals. An FBI investigation completely cleared him. But Jenson has not been told that he was also exonerated by DEA. The charges continued to be held over his head.

--Enforcements chief William Durkin, the No. 3 man, was accused of consorting with a New York prostitute. The alleged incident dated back to 1956, yet the case still remains open. Durkin heard rumors about the accusation, but he was never confronted openly until we questioned him. He flatly denied the incident.

--An exhaustive investigation was launched into charges that public affairs chief Vincent Promuto, the No. 4 man, associated intimately with convicted gamblers, romanced a "$100-a-throw prostitute" and revealed the identity of a DEA informant to a night club operator with underworld connections. We have read through the thick investigative file, which simply does not substantiate the charges.

--It was whispered that two former high officials, Acting Deputy Director Andrew Tartaglino and Acting Chief Inspector George Brosan, were relieved of their duties and reassigned "make work" projects because they refused to call off the Promuto investigation. Tartaglino complained to the Justice Department, which sent the FBI to investigate the investigation.

--The new chief inspector who succeeded Brosan, Philip Smith, also has been under investigation. He was accused of approving a Las Vegas, Nev., caper known inside the agency as "Operation Silver Dollar." Drug agents, posing as big rollers to gain the confidence of Mafia gamblers, accepted at least $20,000 from billionaire Howard Hughes to squander on the gambling table. Smith has been exonerated.

--A confidential DEA study describes a shocking yet unresolved case against a supervisor, who is not identified. He has been implicated, according to the study, in the "murder of CI (confidential informant)" and the "sale of narcctics to CI." Yet after years of investigation, it hasn't been determined whether or not he is guilty.

--The confidential study tells of another unidentified supervisor who was accused in 1972 of selling information from the DEA's investigative files to some drug defendants. This case, too, is still hanging fire.

--Still another top official, according to the DEA study, wrecked an official government vehicle in 1971. He was accused of drunken driving with a "woman companion," but no disposition has been made of the case.

We have spent more than two months digging out the story of the dissention that has virtually paralyzed the DEA's top command. Our associate Bob Owens has interviewed DEA employes at every level. We have also had access to the agency's investigative reports, management studies and other secret files.

The trouble began 18 months ago when the Drug Enforcement Administration was first created. Four rival narcotics agencies, which had been feuding with one another, were merged into a single, new unit.

But instead of stopping the feuds, the reorganization simply brought them under the same roof. The continuing power struggle reached a climax before Christmas with the three-month old investigation of Promuto, which was launched while Administrator Bartels was out of the country.

A December 20 telex message went out to DEA posts throughout the world, declaring tersely: "Andrew C. Tartaglino...George B. Brosan...relieved of all other responsibilities and detailed to me for special assignment."

The Promuto case, Bartels told us, was the last straw. He ordered the reassignment, he said, because of a history of sloppy and unethical investigations.

Sources in the inspection unit charge, however, that Bartels was protecting Promuto because of personal friendship. According to statements taken by the two senior FBI agents assigned to check on DEA's handling of the case, Bartels has demanded constant progress reports on the case and withheld information from his own investigators.

Now Sen. Henry Jackson's, D-Wash., Investigations Subcommittee is preparing a probe for the inspection unit.

Election deadline set

BENTON - Joe Diebold, chairman of the Scott County Extension Council, has announced that Tuesday is the last day to vote in the election to choose five members to the Scott County Extension Council.

Ten candidates are running for the five positions, including Jim Abernathy, Layton Hubbard and Don Schuchart of Sikeston, Virginia Beggs and Ben Marshall III of Blodgett, Jim Bob Davis of Benton, David Diebold and Betty Ressell of Kelso, Winford Farrar of Oran Route One and Gertrude LeGrand of Illmo.

Fourteen persons serve on the committee -- 10 elected and four appointed. Biggs, Davis and LeGrand are seeking re-election. The terms of Joe Diebold and Emil Schuchart Jr. expired, but neither is seeking a new term.

The five positions to be filled are for two-year terms.

Ballots, mailed Jan. 8 to all addresses listed in the county extension center, must be returned before Tuesday, Diebold said.

Any ballots postmarked later than Jan. 21 will be disqualified.

Persons who did not receive ballots may get one on request from the extension center or the following council members: Jerry Aufdenberg, Lewis Blanton, Emil Schuchart Jr., Terry Dame, Frank Stanley or John Hux, of Sikeston. Joe Diebold of Kelso; James E. Emerson of Benton; Donald Heisserer of Illmo; and Louie Hirschowitz or W. G. Mason of Oran.

Duties of the members of the extension council include assisting extension personnel in planning and carrying out an educational program for our county, making recommendations to the University of Missouri concerning extension programs and making available to all individuals, groups or organizations equal opportunities to cooperate in extension educational programs.

"Everyone interested in the progress of our area -- and that should include all of us -- is urged to cast their ballot in this extremely important election," Diebold said.

Malden to vote Tuesday

Voters of Malden will be asked to approve three bond propositions totaling $600,000 at a special election next Tuesday. The propositions deal with street improvements, waterworks and sewer improvements and creation of a revolving fund to provide the means for the city to purchase tax bills issued in payment for improvements to individual propertyowner's sewerage system.

None of the three propositions will create any new tax burdens. The bonds will be retired by the City from funds received from the one cent sales tax recently approved by Malden voters.

The propositions are as follows:

(1) To issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $50,000 for the purpose of constructing, extending and improving streets and avenues.

(2) To issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $250,000 for the purpose of extending and improving the combined waterworks and sewerage system by constructing extensions and improvements to the waterworks and to the sewerage system.

(3) To issue general obligations bonds to the amount of $300,000 for the purpose of establishing a revolving improvement fund to be used for the purchase of tax bills issued by the City in payment for improvements to the sewerage system.

Approval of the bond issues will allow the city to more than $2 million worth of improvements to the water, sewer and road facilities. Of the $2 million to be spent, at least $1.5 million will come from federal grants.

The primary projects being considered by the city include the construction of roads, water lines and renovating the sewage treatment plant in the Malden Industrial Park, and the construction of a new sewage treatment plant and several thousand feet of sewer lines on the west side of town.

Election deadline set

BENTON - Joe Diebold, chairman of the Scott County Extension Council, has announced that Tuesday is the last day to vote in the election to choose five members to the Scott County Extension Council.

Ten candidates are running for the five positions, including Jim Abernathy, Layton Hubbard and Don Schuchart of Sikeston, Virginia Beggs and Ben Marshall III of Blodgett, Jim Bob Davis of Benton, David Diebold and Betty Ressell of Kelso, Winford Farrar of Oran Route One and Gertrude LeGrand of Illmo.

Fourteen persons serve on the committee -- 10 elected and four appointed. Biggs, Davis and LeGrand are seeking re-election. The terms of Joe Diebold and Emil Schuchart Jr. expired, but neither is seeking a new term.

The five positions to be filled are for two-year terms.

Ballots, mailed Jan. 8 to all addresses listed in the county extension center, must be returned before Tuesday, Diebold said.

Any ballots postmarked later than Jan. 21 will be disqualified.

Persons who did not receive ballots may get one on request from the extension center or the following council members: Jerry Aufdenberg, Lewis Blanton, Emil Schuchart Jr., Terry Dame, Frank Stanley or John Hux, of Sikeston. Joe Diebold of Kelso; James E. Emerson of Benton; Donald Heisserer of Illmo; and Louie Hirschowitz or W. G. Mason of Oran.

Duties of the members of the extension council include assisting extension personnel in planning and carrying out an educational program for our county, making recommendations to the University of Missouri concerning extension programs and making available to all individuals, groups or organizations equal opportunities to cooperate in extension educational programs.

"Everyone interested in the progress of our area -- and that should include all of us -- is urged to cast their ballot in this extremely important election," Diebold said.

Malden to vote Tuesday

Voters of Malden will be asked to approve three bond propositions totaling $600,000 at a special election next Tuesday. The propositions deal with street improvements, waterworks and sewer improvements and creation of a revolving fund to provide the means for the city to purchase tax bills issued in payment for improvements to individual propertyowner's sewerage system.

None of the three propositions will create any new tax burdens. The bonds will be retired by the City from funds received from the one cent sales tax recently approved by Malden voters.

The propositions are as follows:

(1) To issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $50,000 for the purpose of constructing, extending and improving streets and avenues.

(2) To issue general obligation bonds to the amount of $250,000 for the purpose of extending and improving the combined waterworks and sewerage system by constructing extensions and improvements to the waterworks and to the sewerage system.

(3) To issue general obligations bonds to the amount of $300,000 for the purpose of establishing a revolving improvement fund to be used for the purchase of tax bills issued by the City in payment for improvements to the sewerage system.

Approval of the bond issues will allow the city to more than $2 million worth of improvements to the water, sewer and road facilities. Of the $2 million to be spent, at least $1.5 million will come from federal grants.

The primary projects being considered by the city include the construction of roads, water lines and renovating the sewage treatment plant in the Malden Industrial Park, and the construction of a new sewage treatment plant and several thousand feet of sewer lines on the west side of town.

VOTING PLACES

The voting precincts will be as follows:

Ward I — Just Rite Cleaners.
Ward II — City Hall.
Ward III — Community Building or DAEOC Building.
Ward IV — High School Library.

Ann Landers

Parents groove on fighting

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday was the last straw. Our parents have been fighting for as long as we can remember. The fights always start over some little thing that doesn't amount to a hill of beans. My father calls my mother "dumb," then she swears at him and he swears back and throws a few things, like a lamp or a chair. Last night he knocked her bridgework loose and she told my older brother to call the police.

When the police arrived, my father was sitting on the sofa reading the newspaper and my mother was beside him knitting a sweater. It was the most peaceful scene you ever saw in your whole life. They both acted very surprised. Dad stood up like a perfect gentleman and said, "You fellows must have the wrong house."

Now my brother is in plenty of trouble because he did what my mother told him to do. Our parents are beautiful people until they lose their temper. Do you have any advice for them? -- Upset Children.

Dear Children: These "beautiful people" need to see a marriage counselor. If they call the Family Service Association or the local Mental Health Society (county or state) they can get the names of some good ones.

Suggest it, but don't bet the rent they'll follow through. They sound like a couple who love to fight.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin who lives in a big city 400 miles from here graduated from business college four years ago. Amy and I were always good friends -- more like sisters than cousins. She is 24, I am 22.

Six months ago, Amy got me a job in the city and I moved into her apartment with her, replacing a former roommate with whom she did not get along. It turns out that Amy is a sex maniac. She goes out every night and picks up some guy. I am supposed to shut my door and play dead.

This morning there were three of us at the breakfast table and I was very uncomfortable. This evening I told her how I felt. She said I was a prude and had no right to "judge her life-style."

I'm afraid Amy is going to get into serious trouble one of these days. You wouldn't believe the creeps she picks up. Shall I tell her parents, or what? Please advise me, Ann. I am-Boggled.

Dear B.: The girl is 24. You are not your cousin's keeper. Keep your mouth shut and move. At once.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read that letter from "Sorry for Mom" about the mother who received a chain letter that was supposed to have been started by a Saint. Some Saint. I wish I had seen your answer two months ago.

I received that same chain letter and being very superstitious I was afraid if I didn't send out 20 copies right away something therrible would happen. Well, you were right. It IS a crock of cranberries. That same week someone ran into my car ($160 repair bill), I broke my finger, my husband sprained his back and my best friend, who also had sent out 20 copies of the chain letter, had a heart attack.

I could kick myself for being such a sucker. Now I think that darned thing brought me bad luck instead of good. I wish I had never bothered with it. Print this, please, for other would-be suckers. -- Dumpbell In Dothan.

Dear D.I.D.: Here's your letter with an added word. Those chain letters are illegal in many states.

Are your parents too strick? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap.

Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Newest look

Meet the "skimp," a dress cut like the Florentine tunics, which goes way up in length with very soft rounded lines above long, shiny legs. The skimp has nothing to do with the old mini look. The coat, very long and slim, looks equally right with the very short or the longer hemline. While the high heel has not been abandoned, the newest shoe is very flat.

Spaghetti supper held

Mrs. Fred Tope Jr., left, hosted a spaghetti supper in her home, 312 Sikes Ave., Jan. 7 for members of Xi Epsilon Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Mrs. Clifford Morris, right, presented a program on southern Europe.

Well, I finally figured out why God decided to make women--to take care of men!!! Charles just got out of the hospital after having had surgery & honestly you wouldn't believe it. I was so tired when he got up from the bed it was all I could do to keep from laying down in it myself. Poor baby, he thought he was going to die, but I knew he wasn't, however, if you had been near him the day after the surgery you might have thought so too, cause I came awfully close to killing him. I am one of these people who when I get sick likes to be left alone-not so Charles, brother does he ever play the role! When I got up the next morning I went out to see him. He hadn't eaten breakfast because I hadn't been there to feed it to him, & he was still lying there waiting for me to give him a bath. I almost croaked!! I bathed myself after my operation but not Charles. I ll say one thing though, you should have heard him holler when I got to scrubbing in his ears. I'll bet that's the cleanest they've ever been-- but, you should have heard me holler when I got to his feet, as he wanted each individual toescrubbed and dried. Doesn't make sense, dirty ears but clean toes - you think he thinks he walks on his head? Oh well, he is now home and bathing under his own steam, and I have slowed down from five hundred trips a day to bring him food, water, sodas, etc. to about a hundred and fifty so things are tapering off; but I'll tell you one thing for sure, next time I'm born I'm going to be the man!!!!

Students , faculty reject Stephens male president

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The furor at Stephens College over the selection of a male president continues unabated following a resolution from the students setting them apart from faculty members on the issue.

Four hundred students at the all-women's private college Tuesday adopted a resolution endorsing the Board of Curators' choice of president, Dr. Arland Christ-Janer, 52. There are 1,850 students on the campus.

"I haven't seen this much student interest since they voted for Nixon's impeachment n October 1973," a source at he school said after the resolution was passed by a vote of 219-175.

Hand-printed signs expressing support and opposition to Christ-Janer dotted the campus.

Faculty members, who had met in separate sessions Friday and Monday, passed resolutions rejecting the appointment and asking Christ-Janer to withdraw.

Christ-Janer's most vocal opponents were incensed that he was selectedover two women candidates and because the curators rejected the choice of a search committee, Dr. Martha Church, a member of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools' Commission on Higher Education. She was the overwhelming choice of students and faculty members who made reports on candidates.

Joyce Pillsbury, chairman of the curators, indicated Tuesday the board was sticking to its decision. Writing in the daily faculty bulletin, Pillsbury said, "In hearing the full report of the search committee and in reviewing the qualifications, the board concluded that the appointment of Dr. Christ-Janer was in the best interest of Stephens College." He noted the president-elect, who is president of New College, Sarasota, Fla., had consistently maintained "he did not want to be considered for the presidency if his acceptance was divisive to the campus."

Pillsbury said the board assured Christ-Janer his appointmeent would not be a divisive issue. Since he accepted the appointment on that assurance, the faculty's resolution asking him to withdraw was inappropriate, the board chairman said.

My father calls my mother "dumb," then she swears at him and he swears back and throws a few things, like a lamp or a chair. Last night he knocked her bridgework loose and she told my older brother to call the police.

When the police arrived, my father was sitting on the sofa reading the newspaper and my mother was beside him knitting a sweater. It was the most peaceful scene you ever saw in your whole life. They both acted very surprised. Dad stood up like a perfect gentleman and said, "You fellows must have the wrong house."

Now my brother is in plenty of trouble because he did what my mother told him to do. Our parents are beautiful people until they lose their temper. Do you have any advice for them? -- Upset Children.

Dear Children: These "beautiful people" need to see a marriage counselor. If they call the Family Service Association or the local Mental Health Society (county or state) they can get the names of some good ones.

Suggest it, but don't bet the rent they'll follow through. They sound like a couple who love to fight.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin who lives in a big city 400 miles from here graduated from business college four years ago. Amy and I were always good friends -- more like sisters than cousins. She is 24, I am 22.

Six months ago, Amy got me a job in the city and I moved into her apartment with her, replacing a former roommate with whom she did not get along. It turns out that Amy is a sex maniac. She goes out every night and picks up some guy. I am supposed to shut my door and play dead.

This morning there were three of us at the breakfast table and I was very uncomfortable. This evening I told her how I felt. She said I was a prude and had no right to "judge her life-style."

I'm afraid Amy is going to get into serious trouble one of these days. You wouldn't believe the creeps she picks up. Shall I tell her parents, or what? Please advise me, Ann. I am-Boggled.

Dear B.: The girl is 24. You are not your cousin's keeper. Keep your mouth shut and move. At once.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read that letter from "Sorry for Mom" about the mother who received a chain letter that was supposed to have been started by a Saint. Some Saint. I wish I had seen your answer two months ago.

I received that same chain letter and being very superstitious I was afraid if I didn't send out 20 copies right away something therrible would happen. Well, you were right. It IS a crock of cranberries. That same week someone ran into my car ($160 repair bill), I broke my finger, my husband sprained his back and my best friend, who also had sent out 20 copies of the chain letter, had a heart attack.

I could kick myself for being such a sucker. Now I think that darned thing brought me bad luck instead of good. I wish I had never bothered with it. Print this, please, for other would-be suckers. -- Dumpbell In Dothan.

Dear D.I.D.: Here's your letter with an added word. Those chain letters are illegal in many states.

Are your parents too strick? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap.

Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Newest look

Meet the "skimp," a dress cut like the Florentine tunics, which goes way up in length with very soft rounded lines above long, shiny legs. The skimp has nothing to do with the old mini look. The coat, very long and slim, looks equally right with the very short or the longer hemline. While the high heel has not been abandoned, the newest shoe is very flat.

Spaghetti supper held

Mrs. Fred Tope Jr., left, hosted a spaghetti supper in her home, 312 Sikes Ave., Jan. 7 for members of Xi Epsilon Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Mrs. Clifford Morris, right, presented a program on southern Europe.

Well, I finally figured out why God decided to make women---to take care of men!!! Charles just got out of the hospital after having had surgery & honestly you wouldn't believe it. I was so tired when he got up from the bed it was all I could do to keep from laying down in it myself. Poor baby, he thought he was going to die, but I knew he wasn't, however, if you had been near him the day after the surgery you might have thought so too, cause I came awfully close to killing him. I am one of these people who when I get sick likes to be left alone-not so Charles, brother does he ever play the role! When I got up the next morning I went out to see him. He hadn't eaten breakfast because I hadn't been there to feed it to him, & he was still lying there waiting for me to give him a bath. I almost croaked!! I bathed myself after my operation but not Charles. I ll say one thing though, you should have heard him holler when I got to scrubbing in his ears. I'll bet that's the cleanest they've ever been-- but, you should have heard me holler when I got to his feet, as he wanted each individual toescrubbed and dried. Doesn't make sense, dirty ears but clean toes - you think he thinks he walks on his head? Oh well, he is now home and bathing under his own steam, and I have slowed down from five hundred trips a day to bring him food, water, sodas, etc. to about a hundred and fifty so things are tapering off; but I'll tell you one thing for sure, next time I'm born I'm going to be the man!!!!

Students, faculty reject Stephens male president

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The furor at Stephens College over the selection of a male president continues unabated following a resolution from the students setting them apart from faculty members on the issue.

Four hundred students at the all-women's private college Tuesday adopted a resolution endorsing the Board of Curators' choice of president, Dr. Arland Christ-Janer, 52. There are 1,850 students on the campus.

"I haven't seen this much student interest since they voted for Nixon's impeachment n October 1973," a source at he school said after the resolution was passed by a vote of 219-175.

Hand-printed signs expressing support and opposition to Christ-Janer dotted the campus.

Faculty members, who had met in separate sessions Friday and Monday, passed resolutions rejecting the appointment and asking Christ-Janer to withdraw.

Christ-Janer's most vocal opponents were incensed that he was selectedover two women candidates and because the curators rejected the choice of a search committee, Dr. Martha Church, a member of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools' Commission on Higher Education. She was the overwhelming choice of students and faculty members who made reports on candidates.

Joyce Pillsbury, chairman of the curators, indicated Tuesday the board was sticking to its decision. Writing in the daily faculty bulletin, Pillsbury said, "In hearing the full report of the search committee and in reviewing the qualifications, the board concluded that the appointment of Dr. Christ-Janer was in the best interest of Stephens College." He noted the president-elect, who is president of New College, Sarasota, Fla., had consistently maintained "he did not want to be considered for the presidency if his acceptance was divisive to the campus."

Pillsbury said the board assured Christ-Janer his appointmeent would not be a divisive issue. Since he accepted the appointment on that assurance, the faculty's resolution asking him to withdraw was inappropriate, the board chairman said.

Mailmen threaten to strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letter carriers are threatening a nationwide strike in March if the U.S. Postal Service implements a new delivery system designed to increase efficiency but which union leaders say will eliminate 15,000 jobs.

The National Association of Letter Carriers has sent letters to all locals urging its nearly 200,000 members to prepare for "the possibility of a national job action as a result of implementation of computerized route adjustments contrary to the best interest and welfare of our membership."

The union says the new system would turn its men into "robots" and slow the mail by overburdening mail carriers.

Postal officials charge the union is formulating "a nationally organized plan to soften the public and the press for a possible illegal strike against the government."

A strike, if it comes, would be the first against the postal system since the historic walkout of March 1970 when federal troops were called in to help deliver the mails. The walkout helped lead to the reorganization of the Post Office Department as an independent semi-government agency.

Strikes are prohibited against the government, but President James H. Rademacher of the letter carriers says, "We are willing to risk the consequences."

"I'm hoping they (Postal Service officials) will back off and listen to reason," Rademacher said in an interview. "But I've got a mandate and no choice but to strike."

Letter carriers at their Seattle convention last August voted overwhelmingly to strike the Postal Service if new work standards now being tested at Kokomo, Ind., are put into effect.

But Rademacher says the Postal Service appears ready to go ahead with the Kokomo plan regardless of the results.

Aid payments announced

EAST PRAIRIE — During December, expenditures of the Mississippi County Family Services Office totaled $96,636, according to figures released by Mrs. Agnes Cunningham, county director.

Mississippi County has 706 federal supplemental security income and state supplemental cases, which had total expenditures of $21,796 in December. Supplemental security income only cases numbered 450, for which medical benefits and social services are provided.

Medical assistance only was provided for 76 persons, and 118 recipients were in professional nursing homes.

ASSOCIATED NATURAL GAS COMPANY

MEMO:
To: All Natural Gas Customers

Our major pipeline suppliers of natural gas have just informed us that we will be about ONE BILLION cubic feet of natural gas short of our needs this year.

The implications are sobering. If the winter is severe, there likely will be a shortage of natural gas and alternate fuels. And that means the factory where you work may not be able to continue operating, unless...

Unless everybody conserves on the use of natural gas. Factories can only have that portion of gas not consumed by higher priority users, such as residences and businesses. Last year, through conservation, you reduced consumption of natural gas by six percent. This year, even more of a savings will be required...because we have less gas than ever before.

So, don't just think about conservation of natural gas. Please do something about it! You can begin by lowering your furnace thermostat to 68 degrees during daylight hours.

Mailmen threaten to strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letter carriers are threatening a nationwide strike in March if the U.S. Postal Service implements a new delivery system designed to increase efficiency but which union leaders say will eliminate 15,000 jobs.

The National Association of Letter Carriers has sent letters to all locals urging its nearly 200,000 members to prepare for "the possibility of a national job action as a result of implementation of computerized route adjustments contrary to the best interest and welfare of our membership."

The union says the new system would turn its men into "robots" and slow the mail by overburdening mail carriers.

Postal officials charge the union is formulating "a nationally organized plan to soften the public and the press for a possible illegal strike against the government."

A strike, if it comes, would be the first against the postal system since the historic walkout of March 1970 when federal troops were called in to help deliver the mails. The walkout helped lead to the reorganization of the Post Office Department as an independent semi-government agency.

Strikes are prohibited against the government, but President James H. Rademacher of the letter carriers says, "We are willing to risk the consequences."

"I'm hoping they (Postal Service officials) will back off and listen to reason," Rademacher said in an interview. "But I've got a mandate and no choice but to strike."

Letter carriers at their Seattle convention last August voted overwhelmingly to strike the Postal Service if new work standards now being tested at Kokomo, Ind., are put into effect.

But Rademacher says the Postal Service appears ready to go ahead with the Kokomo plan regardless of the results.

ASSOCIATED NATURAL GAS COMPANY

MEMO:

To: All Natural Gas Customers

Our major pipeline suppliers of natural gas have just informed us that we will be about ONE BILLION cubic feet of natural gas short of our needs this year.

The implications are sobering. If the winter is severe, there likely will be a shortage of natural gas and alternate fuels. And that means the factory where you work may not be able to continue operating, unless...

Unless everybody conserves on the use of natural gas. Factories can only have that portion of gas not consumed by higher priority users, such as residences and businesses. Last year, through conservation, you reduced consumption of natural gas by six percent. This year, even more of a savings will be required...because we have less gas than ever before.

So, don't just think about conservation of natural gas. Please do something about it! You can begin by lowering your furnace thermostat to 68 degrees during daylight hours.

Royals sign Minnesota's 'killer'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Aging slugger Harmon Killebrew has bid farewell to the Minnesota Twins and hopes to gain a new lease on his baseball life with the Kansas City Royals.

Joe Burke, general manager of the Royals, announced Wednesday the club has reached an agreement with the famed 38-year-old home run specialist and that Killebrew "can sign a contract with us as soon as he is released by the Twins."

Killebrew came to terms with the Royals after daylong reports he was headed for the Texas Rangers. Burke did not disclose terms of the one-year agreement but the Rangers said they would not meet Killebrew's reported request for $80,000 a year.

Royals Stadium may have been a factor in Killebrew's desire to join Kansas City rather than Texas.

"Texas might have the toughest park to hit in in both leagues," Killebrew said from his home in Ontario, Ore. "I certainly hope I can play a couple more years. Kansas City is giving me that opportunity.

"I like the ball park, and I like the club's chances of being a pennant winner."

Killebrew will be used by the Royals as a designated hitter and pinch hitter. He had 74 hits in 333 times at bat, 13 home runs and drove in 54 runs for the Twins in 1974.

Killebrew's move to the Royals closes out a 14-year reign in Minnesota with whom he became one of baseball's most feared hitters.

He has 559 career home runs, many of them of record distance, and is fifth on the all-time list.

Burke was elated and Twins owner Calvin Griffith and thousands of Minnesota fans saddened by Wednesday's developments.

"We are delighted to have Killebrew," said Burke. "We believe he can help us tremendously and will add much needed right-handed hitting power to our lineup.

"Harmon gives us home run and RBI potential to go with Hal McRae, Amos Otis and John Mayberry. If we have three guys like Otis, McRae and Killebrew, it will be pretty tough to pitch around Mayberry.

"Based on what he did last season with the Twins, I feel Harmon can hit 20 home runs and drive in 65."

"He's been with the Twins for the past 14 years," said Griffith, who signed Killebrew in 1954 fresh out of high school at Payette, Idaho. "We're tremendously indebted to him for all he's meant to our organization and our area."

Killebrew, most prolific right-handed home run hitter in American League history and an AL all-star 13 times, said he was offered three options by Griffith.

"I had a chance to manage Tacoma in the Pacific Coast League," the slugger explained, "stay with Minnesota as a pinch hitter and batting coach or be released.

"Sure, it's tought making this change. I told Calvin I wanted to play but apparently they felt I couldn't any more.

The Twins offered Killebrew $40,000, one-half of his reported 1974 salary, to remain with the organization during the 1975 campaign but apparently the overwhelming desire to continue to compete influenced the old pro in his decision to take Griffith up on his offer for an unconditional release.

Minnesota fans undoubtedly will sense a sort of emptiness the next time they go to the ball park. Killebrew, described by both Burke and Griffith as always a gentleman, won't be there in his familiar No. 3 Twins uniform.

Cliff Bailey of Minneapolis might well have spoken for most of them when he said:

"He even looked good striking out. I hate to see him go. You knew there was always a chance if Harmon was going to bat. I don't know how they can replace him."

And Killebrew, last of the players who transferred from Washington to Minnesota in 1961:

"It's sure going to be strange not being with Minnesota any more."

Johnson sets record

MEMPHIS (AP) — St. Louis won 104-99 Wednesday night, but the fans left talking about the spectacular shooting of the Memphis Sounds' Stew Johnson.

Johnson set a new record for the American Basketball Association's Memphis franchise by scoring 32 points in the second half. He finished with 40 for the game, hitting 16 out of 22 in the second half for a game total of 20 of 30 shots.

The St. Louis Spirits' "Goo" Kennedy, who tried to guard Johnson during the game, said: "You just can't stop him when he gets hot. He's a pure shooter—one of the best in pro basketball. When he's hot, he's just unreal."

"I did everything I could," said Kennedy. "When he jumped, I jumped. I had my hand in his face, but the ball still went in."

St. Louis Coach Bob MacKinnon said of Johnson, "I haven't seen many nights like that before. He was just unbelievable. You can't take anything away from 'Goo.' He did everything he could to stop him."

Johnson was not fouled once during the game and despite his 40-point showing, made no free throws.

He discounted his performance, saying, "I've had games like this before. Five or six, maybe. It doesn't mean much when you lose."

The victory snapped a streak in which St. Louis had lost 11 straight road games. They now stand at 4-18 on the road.

Kennedy led St. Louis with 25 points and Marvin Barnes added 23, sparking the Spirits in the final quarter with eight rebounds and nine points.

"Marvin Barnes really got us going there in the last quarter with his rebounding," MacKinnon said.

Mules kick Royals

POPLAR BLUFF-Board strength and muscle power propelled Poplar Bluff past Twin Rivers here Tuesday night 59-54.

A cautious first quarter saw the Mules slip into a two-point 10-8 lead. With PB's Scott Harrell warming the nets the Mules heated up the action somewhat in the second frame taking it from the still cold Royals 17-7 to run their intermission margin to 27-15.

TRHS finally found the range and the net in the last half to outscore Poplar Bluff 39-32, but the rally fell five points short.

PBHS's Harrell wound up with a game high 24 points, while Stan Morgan hit 21 for Twin Rivers. The Royals suffered only their second loss of the season with the defeat, dropping their mark to 10 & 2, while Poplar Bluff, with the upset, approached the .500 plateau at six wins and seven losses.

The junior varsity contest was all TRHS as Mark Lance led the Royals with 176 points and a 47-35 victory. Richard McBride and Dennis Duncan netted 12 apiece for Poplar Bluff.

Kelly streaks from behind

LUTESVILLE- The Woodland Cardinals smelled upset here Tuesday night as the Cardinals caught Kelly cold in the first half with a pressing defense to take a 32-24 first half edge. Good offensive penetration down the middle and a defense which gave the Hawks a bad case of fumble fingers and errant passes the story in that first 16 minutes.

But the Cardinals should have known turn-a-bout was fair play as Kelly came out in the second half giving the cold shoulder to Woodland and easing to a 67-58 win.

A 24-14 fourth quarter was all the Hawks needed to finally shake the Cardinals off their tail feathers. Actually, what kept Woodland in the game at all was hitting a fantastic 22 out of 28 from the free throw line, while Kelly managed only 11. Most of that occurred in the first half before Kelly could solve the Woodland press.

In the final 16 minutes it was Kelly's field goal accuracy that decided the contest, outgunning the Cardinals 28-18 on the game. High point men in the affair was Russ Mothershead for Kelly with 13 and Ron Wesbecker for Woodland with 16.

The Hawks also captured the JV game 45-29 with Hobert and Felter hitting 10 apiece for Kelly and Wyatt netting 6 to lead Woodland.

New Madrid romps past Matthews

MATTHEWS-A tenacious defense and a 16-5 opening quarter started New Madrid on the victory road here Tuesday night against Matthews 73-52. On an evening which saw several area teams seemingly fall prey to the cold outside, it was the Pirates turn before a home crowd.

Matthews could only find the hoop for 16 markers in the first half while the Indians swished in 31. The lanes warmed up somewhat for the Pirates in the second half but they did for the visiting New Madrid five, too, as the Indians padded their lead by three in each of the last two periods.

It was a solid team effort that gave NMHS the victory as four men hit in double figured led by Glenn's 23. Robinson was high for the Pirates with 12.

Matthews salvaged a split on the night's action by taking the junior varsity contest 61-52. Gerald Davis wound up with 25 for the Pirates to lead all scorers. Baker had 11 for New Madrid.

MU boast top mark

COLUMBIA, Mo.–Missouri's wandering tribe of basketball players will prepare for battle on foreign shores once again this week as the Tigers begin the Big Eight conference wars with encounters at Kansas and Oklahoma State.

The traveling Bengals, after five early-season home successes, have been on the road for seven consecutive outings since mid-December (winning four of the seven), but Coach Norm Stewart's band of cagers must contend with enemy strongholds in Lawrence Saturday night and Stillwater Wednesday night before returning to the Hearnes complex. Tip-off both nights is set for 7:35 p.m.

Currently boasting the loop's top mark in non-conference play at 9-3, Mizzou figures to have all it can handle against the Jayhawks and Cowboys. But Stewart is confident the Tigers will be up to the challenge after surmounting numerous problems during their road trip.

"We're a little surprised as far as our record is concerned," allows Stewart, "but we've seemingly been able to overcome one obstacle after another whether it's been travel, injuries, or whatever."

Although injuries have plagued the Mizzou front line ever since Gail Wolf's October surgery, the picture is a bit rosier this week with the return of sophomore Kim Anderson to the practice scene. Hampered by a stress fracture of the foot suffered against Duquesne, the Tigers' 6-8 pivotman has missed five games but will be practicing again on a partial basis this week as a result of Monday's x-ray.

"If Kim is able to play on Saturday, it will again be on a partial basis," emphasizes Stewart. "Despite being handicapped by a lack of practice time, we'll certainly be glad to have him back out there."

Back at 100 per cent efficiency again, Jim Kennedy will attempt to keep up his team-leading scoring efforts of the last two games that he achieved in spite of a swollen ankle. Gail Wolf, too, is available for duty as he continues to improve his conditioning.

Saturday's tussle in Lawrence in each team's league opener would probably be a struggle no matter what the circumstances, but the Tigers assuredly will remember their last trek to the Jayhawks' nest when KU administered a 112-76 pasting to the Bengals in last spring's finale.

This time around, defending Big Eight champion Kansas is 8-4 following early losses to midwest strongboys Indiana, Notre Dame, and Kentucky. But after several close shaves helped KU end Mizzou's Big Eight Tournament domination, Ted Owens' veteran squad appears to be back in stride.

Guy Strong's Cowboys are saddled with a 5-7 slate that has seen Oklahoma State go 5-5 on the road and 0-for-2 in Stillwater, but four of those losses have been to U.C.L.A., Southern Cal, Alabama, and Kentucky.

O.S.U.'s backcourt tandem of Ronnie Daniel and K.C. Kincaide continue to pace the Aggies while netting 32 points per game between them. Stellar rebounder Andy Hopson is contributing 10 points and 10 rebounds a game. The Cowboys open their conference season Saturday at Iowa State.

Indians take to the road

CAPE GIRARDEAU--In the words of a song, it's time for Southeast Missouri State University's basketball team to "hit the road, Jack."

The surprising Indians journey to Warrensburg Friday (Jan. 17) to meet the surprising Central Missouri State University Mules who, despite a below .500 season so far, upset Southwest Missouri State University a week ago in overtime. On Saturday night (Jan. 18), the Indians will drop down to Springfield to do battle with the "smarting" Bears who also lost Monday night to Lincoln University at Jefferson City.

Both the Mules and the Bears will be seeking revenge for defeats which Southeast Missouri State handed them during the MIAA holiday tournament Jan. 2-4.

The Indians downed the Mules 105-100 in the opening round of the tourney, then pinned a 64-62 loss on the top-seeded Bears in the championship game.

Coach Bob Cradic's crew, after opening the conference season with wins over Northeast Missouri State University of Kirksville and Northwest Missouri State University of Maryville, is 8-3 on the year and 2-0 in the MIAA title chase.

The Tribe will make its swing to Central and Southwest Missouri without the services of 6-7 Arvin Haynes of St. Louis who sustained a severe ankle injury in the earlier game against the Bears.

The cast on Haynes' foot and ankle was removed Tuesday, but it isstill unknown how long he will be out of action.

Larry Rogers, a 6-5 freshman from Linden, Ala., has started the three Indian games since Haynes' injury and has done a creditable job. He collected clutch baskets in the final minutes against both Northwest Missouri State and Northeast Missouri State.

Rogers was also the Indians' leading rebounder in both games and in both he scored in double figures. His rebounding average is now up to 7.1 a game and he is scoring at a rate of 11.1 per contest.

Senior Steve Valli, a 6-6 forward from St. Louis, continues to pace the Tribe's scoring attack with a 16.5 average. With Haynes' out, Valli is also the top rebounder on the squad with a 7.4 average.

Two other Indians are also hitting in double figures. They are 6-0 sophomore Joe Cagle of Caruthersville, 14.2, and 6-1 senior Mark Baker of New Madrid, 14.1.

Rick Gosnell, a 5-9 junior guard from Paris, Ill., paces the Central Missouri State attack and is the scoring leader in the MIAA with an average of more than 20 points a game. He hit for 41 in the Mules' victory over Southwest Missouri State.

Three other members of the Mules' high-scoring squad are also hitting in double figures.

Southwest Missouri State also has three players in twin figures. The Bears are led by 6-3 senior Daryel Garrison of Kansas City.

After this week end's games the Indians will return to Cape Girardeau before going on the road again Jan. 25 for a conference game at the University of Missouri--Rolla. They will play at Lincoln University in a league tilt on Jan. 27 before returning home Jan. 30 for a non-conference bout with Delta State University of Cleveland, Miss.

East Prairie fights off OHS

EAST PRAIRIE-It was point for point here Tuesday night between two Eagle quintets and when the smoke finally cleared, the East Prairie Eagles had themselves a 76-73 cliff-hanger.

Oran let the other Eagles gain a 21-18 margin the first eight minutes of play then played catch-up the rest of the night, matching East Prairie point for point. The biggest margin for EPHS came at the close of the third period as they enjoyed a 57-52 lead.

Oran played on even terms from the field, tying on the game at 33 apiece. But the charity stripe cost them the victory with East Prairie owning a 10-7 advantage from there.

Davenport rimmed in 20 for EPHS, and Oran's Keith Campbell came away with game honors at 22.

The junior varsity contest was all Oran as they ripped the southern Eagles 62-33. Senciboy, Laster, and Friga tied at 12 apiece to lead the Oran attack. Larry Johnson took game honors in East Prairie losing cause with 17.

Comparable boys-girls sports

(FROM THE MISSOURI HIGH SCHOOL ACTIVITIES JOURNAL(

Court decisions and Health, Education and Welfare Guidelines are making it clear that schools must provide "comparable" opportunities for participation for both boys and girls in interscholastics. A final interpretation of the term "comparable" has not been determined. The replies to questions as to what it means are confusing. For example, officials of HEW have indicated that football for boys and field hockey for girls would be acceptable. However, when the question was raised as to whether volleyball for girls during the same season basketball was offered for boys would be comparable, Attorney Gwendolyn Gregory of HEW would not give a definitive answer to representatives of the National Federation of State High School Associations.

Providing comparable opportunities for both sexes poses some real questions and problems for school administrators and boards of education. No doubt they will be carefully reevaluating their activities programs. Some are reevaluating the junior high school program to determine what type it should be and what differences there should be as compared with the senior high school program. There will be increasing pressure to add additional girls sports at both the junior and senior high school levels. Although the ideal would be to offer activities to as many boys and girls as wish to participate, few, if any, boards of education and school administrators will find this possible. Hence, careful study must be given as to the best type of interscholastic program that can be offered under the conditions present at that particular school.

Indians take to the road

CAPE GIRARDEAU--In the words of a song, it's time for Southeast Missouri State University's basketball team to "hit the road, Jack."

The surprising Indians journey to Warrensburg Friday (Jan. 17) to meet the surprising Central Missouri State University Mules who, despite a below .500 season so far, upset Southwest Missouri State University a week ago in overtime. On Saturday night (Jan. 18), the Indians will drop down to Springfield to do battle with the "smarting" Bears who also lost Monday night to Lincoln University at Jefferson City.

Both the Mules and the Bears will be seeking revenge for defeats which Southeast Missouri State handed them during the MIAA holiday tournament Jan. 2-4.

The Indians downed the Mules 105-100 in the opening round of the tourney, then pinned a 64-62 loss on the top-seeded Bears in the championship game.

Coach Bob Cradic's crew, after opening the conference season with wins over Northeast Missouri State University of Kirksville and Northwest Missouri State University of Maryville, is 8-3 on the year and 2-0 in the MIAA title chase.

The Tribe will make its swing to Central and Southwest Missouri without the services of 6-7 Arvin Haynes of St. Louis who sustained a severe ankle injury in the earlier game against the Bears.

The cast on Haynes' foot and ankle was removed Tuesday, but it isstill unknown how long he will be out of action.

Larry Rogers, a 6-5 freshman from Linden, Ala., has started the three Indian games since Haynes' injury and has done a creditable job. He collected clutch baskets in the final minutes against both Northwest Missouri State and Northeast Missouri State.

Rogers was also the Indians' leading rebounder in both games and in both he scored in double figures. His rebounding average is now up to 7.1 a game and he is scoring at a rate of 11.1 per contest.

Senior Steve Valli, a 6-6 forward from St. Louis, continues to pace the Tribe's scoring attack with a 16.5 average. With Haynes' out, Valli is also the top rebounder on the squad with a 7.4 average.

Two other Indians are also hitting in double figures. They are 6-0 sophomore Joe Cagle of Caruthersville, 14.2, and 6-1 senior Mark Baker of New Madrid, 14.1.

Rick Gosnell, a 5-9 junior guard from Paris, Ill., paces the Central Missouri State attack and is the scoring leader in the MIAA with an average of more than 20 points a game. He hit for 41 in the Mules' victory over Southwest Missouri State.

Three other members of the Mules' high-scoring squad are also hitting in double figures.

Southwest Missouri State also has three players in twin figures. The Bears are led by 6-3 senior Daryel Garrison of Kansas City.

After this week end's games the Indians will return to Cape Girardeau before going on the road again Jan. 25 for a conference game at the University of Missouri--Rolla. They will play at Lincoln University in a league tilt on Jan. 27 before returning home Jan. 30 for a non-conference bout with Delta State University of Cleveland, Miss.

East Prairie fights off OHS

EAST PRAIRIE-It was point for point here Tuesday night between two Eagle quintets and when the smoke finally cleared, the East Prairie Eagles had themselves a 76-73 cliff-hanger.

Oran let the other Eagles gain a 21-18 margin the first eight minutes of play then played catch-up the rest of the night, matching East Prairie point for point. The biggest margin for EPHS came at the close of the third period as they enjoyed a 57-52 lead.

Oran played on even terms from the field, tying on the game at 33 apiece. But the charity stripe cost them the victory with East Prairie owning a 10-7 advantage from there.

Davenport rimmed in 20 for EPHS, and Oran's Keith Campbell came away with game honors at 22.

The junior varsity contest was all Oran as they ripped the southern Eagles 62-33. Senciboy, Laster, and Friga tied at 12 apiece to lead the Oran attack. Larry Johnson took game honors in East Prairie losing cause with 17.

"HEALTH TIPS"

Here's how not to poison guests with the food-poisoning organism Salmonella: for all dishes prepared in advance for parties, keep hot foods hot, above 140 degrees F., and cold foods cold, below 40 degrees F. Do not eat or serve foods which smell or look abnormal, and remember that they may poison household and farm animals.

"There are about 25 million dogs in the United States." It is no wonder that the shrubbery has such a tough time of it.

There, little luxury, don't cry
You'll be a necessity by and by.

World news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers at low-and middle-income levels would get a better tax break from President Ford's proposed tax reductions than high-income taxpayers. Families of four with incomes somewhere between $12,500 and $15,000 would break even under Ford's plans, getting a tax cut about equal to the increase in their energy costs, according to government estimates.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letter carriers are threatening a nationwide strike in March if the U.S. Postal Service implements a new delivery system designed to increase efficiency but which union leaders say will eliminate 15,000 jobs. The National Association of Letter Carriers has sent letters to all locals urging its nearly 200,000 members to prepare for "the possibility of a national job action as a result of implementation of computerized route adjustments contrary to the best interest and welfare of our membership."

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William E. Colby faces questioning by the Senate Armed Services Committee about his admission that the spy agency has conducted domestic surveillance operations. Colby has described agency spy operations directed against antiwar radicals and other dissidents in the United States. He also acknowledged that the CIA had established files on some 10,000 American citizens.

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats hope to pass a tax cut within two months but they say the rest of President Ford's economic and energy proposals face slower action and considerable revision. Several Democrats said the measures outlined by Ford in a somber State of the Union speech will fail to revitalize the slumping economy and will increase inflationary pressures by driving up the price of fuel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic leadership has recommended that two House chairmen be stripped of their posts, and two more are threatened. The leadership recommended that Reps. Wright Patman and Wayne L. Hays be replaced and narrowly voted for renomination of W.R. Poague and F. Edward Hebert. Some members predicted that Poage and Hebert would lose when the more liberal caucus of all House Democrats took up the leaders' recommendations.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said today that unless Isral withdraws its forces on all three Arab fronts within three months he will abandon Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempt to bring peace to the Middle East. He also rejected any unilateral agreement for an Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian territory only, saying the Israelis must withdraw simultaneously from occupied Syrian and Jordanian territory also.

World news

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taxpayers at low-and middle-income levels would get a better tax break from President Ford's proposed tax reductions than high-income taxpayers. Families of four with incomes somewhere between $12,500 and $15,000 would break even under Ford's plans, getting a tax cut about equal to the increase in their energy costs, according to government estimates.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letter carriers are threatening a nationwide strike in March if the U.S. Postal Service implements a new delivery system designed to increase efficiency but which union leaders say will eliminate 15,000 jobs. The National Association of Letter Carriers has sent letters to all locals urging its nearly 200,000 members to prepare for "the possibility of a national job action as a result of implementation of computerized route adjustments contrary to the best interest and welfare of our membership."

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William E. Colby faces questioning by the Senate Armed Services Committee about his admission that the spy agency has conducted domestic surveillance operations. Colby has described agency spy operations directed against antiwar radicals and other dissidents in the United States. He also acknowledged that the CIA had established files on some 10,000 American citizens.

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats hope to pass a tax cut within two months but they say the rest of President Ford's economic and energy proposals face slower action and considerable revision. Several Democrats said the measures outlined by Ford in a somber State of the Union speech will fail to revitalize the slumping economy and will increase inflationary pressures by driving up the price of fuel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic leadership has recommended that two House chairmen be stripped of their posts, and two more are threatened. The leadership recommended that Reps. Wright Patman and Wayne L. Hays be replaced and narrowly voted for renomination of W.R. Poague and F. Edward Hebert. Some members predicted that Poage and Hebert would lose when the more liberal caucus of all House Democrats took up the leaders' recommendations.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said today that unless Isral withdraws its forces on all three Arab fronts within three months he will abandon Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's attempt to bring peace to the Middle East. He also rejected any unilateral agreement for an Israeli withdrawal from Egyptian territory only, saying the Israelis must withdraw simultaneously from occupied Syrian and Jordanian territory also.

What's the law?

The case of the departed golfer

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

During their morning game of golf, a gulf developed between Stu and Irwin. With Stu handling the controls of a golf cart, located in the middle of the front seat, they were headed for the sixth tee when Stu suddenly made a sharp turn to the left.

As he did so, Irwin went shooting out of the cart to the right. And landing with his temper below par, Irwin sued Stu for his injuries.

"He can't hold me responsible for what happened," insisted Stu in court. "I was driving along the regular path and merely turned left when it came time to head for the sixth tee. Since he left the driving to me, he's got no complaint."

"I certainly do," was Irwin's answer. "He had an obligation to forewarn me that he was going to make a sharp turn. It would have been a good turn had he prepared me for his bad turn."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Stu liable for Irwin's sudden departure from the golf cart?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a turn in a golf cart can scarcely be made sureptitciously since the steering mechanism is in the middle of the front seat. Consequently, concluded the judge, Stu's failure to warn Irwin that he was going to make a turn was not in and of itself negligent. Nor was there any evidence that giving such notice was usual.

Hudson Bay may be drying up. About 6,000 to 7,000 years ago it was an immense inland sea covering the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. Ice, believed a mile thick, began to melt, the weight pushed down or warped the earth beneath and the runoff water collected in a depressed basin called the Tyrell Sea. During the centuries the sea drained off to its present Hudson Bay size.

Dr. Lamb

Heat may help leg cramps

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past two years I have had severe leg cramps, calf and thigh, mostly at night, but sometimes during the day. About two years ago I had a prostate gland operation. My prostate was about the size of a grapefruit but no tumor.

I take 200 mg. quinine capsules every eight hours or Quinamm tablets at bedtime, but relief from the leg cramps is only slight. I exercise my toes, feet and legs by flexing, twisting, bending, rubbing, etc.

I'm 61 and have severe pulmonary emphysema and chronic bronchitis. I don't smoke. Do you have any comments on my condition or ways to correct it?

DEAR READER — The medicines you are taking are often prescribed for leg cramps. I presume you have had a careful examination of the circulation in your legs. In your age group, and sometimes younger, leg cramps can be caused by inadequate circulation.

This can happen because there is a blockage in the large arteries in the pelvis or upper thigh. If the arteries below this area are open, a vascular surgeon can simply put in a graft of a tube or hose-like synthetic material and detour the blood around the blocked area.

In some cases the arteries are severely blocked all the way to the toes and then there is nothing to detour to, because the arteries are like a dead-end street. But, if you can make a detour, the operation is usually very successful.

If you don't have a problem that can be corrected then there are two other things I would suggest. Be sure you get plenty of calcium. A quart of milk a day should meet your needs, and with your history I would prefer it be skim milk to avoid excess fat. Also your diet should be a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and low enough in calories to prevent obesity. If you smoked I would of course tell you that you should quit at once.

Body temperature varies from the head to the toes. The feet tend to be considerably cooler than the face. At night the circulation slows down, and since the feet and legs are farthest from the heart, they cool the most. Cool muscles are more inclined to cramp. Many readers have written in to tell me about the good results they have gotten from using warm socks.

Don't use a heating pad or something like that to warm your feet as it may get too hot while you are asleep and burn you. With poor circulation, if that is your problem, that would cause you serious difficulties. Let me know how you get along.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Losing Weight" booklet.

What's the law?

The case of the departed golfer

By: JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

During their morning game of golf, a gulf developed between Stu and Irwin. With Stu handling the controls of a golf cart, located in the middle of the front seat, they were headed for the sixth tee when Stu suddenly made a sharp turn to the left.

As he did so, Irwin went shooting out of the cart to the right. And landing with his temper below par, Irwin sued Stu for his injuries.

"He can't hold me responsible for what happened," insisted Stu in court. "I was driving along the regular path and merely turned left when it came time to head for the sixth tee. Since he left the driving to me, he's got no complaint."

"I certainly do," was Irwin's answer. "He had an obligation to forewarn me that he was going to make a sharp turn. It would have been a good turn had he prepared me for his bad turn."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Stu liable for Irwin's sudden departure from the golf cart?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a turn in a golf cart can scarcely be made sureptitciously since the steering mechanism is in the middle of the front seat. Consequently, concluded the judge, Stu's failure to warn Irwin that he was going to make a turn was not in and of itself negligent. Nor was there any evidence that giving such notice was usual.

Hudson Bay may be drying up. About 6,000 to 7,000 years ago it was an immense inland sea covering the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. Ice, believed a mile thick, began to melt, the weight pushed down or warped the earth beneath and the runoff water collected in a depressed basin called the Tyrell Sea. During the centuries the sea drained off to its present Hudson Bay size.

Dr. Lamb

Heat may help leg cramps

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past two years I have had severe leg cramps, calf and thigh, mostly at night, but sometimes during the day. About two years ago I had a prostate gland operation. My prostate was about the size of a grapefruit but no tumor.

I take 200 mg. quinine capsules every eight hours or Quinamm tablets at bedtime, but relief from the leg cramps is only slight. I exercise my toes, feet and legs by flexing, twisting, bending, rubbing, etc.

I'm 61 and have severe pulmonary emphysema and chronic bronchitis. I don't smoke. Do you have any comments on my condition or ways to correct it?

DEAR READER — The medicines you are taking are often prescribed for leg cramps. I presume you have had a careful examination of the circulation in your legs. In your age group, and sometimes younger, leg cramps can be caused by inadequate circulation.

This can happen because there is a blockage in the large arteries in the pelvis or upper thigh. If the arteries below this area are open, a vascular surgeon can simply put in a graft of a tube or hose-like synthetic material and detour the blood around the blocked area.

In some cases the arteries are severely blocked all the way to the toes and then there is nothing to detour to, because the arteries are like a dead-end street. But, if you can make a detour, the operation is usually very successful.

If you don't have a problem that can be corrected then there are two other things I would suggest. Be sure you get plenty of calcium. A quart of milk a day should meet your needs, and with your history I would prefer it be skim milk to avoid excess fat. Also your diet should be a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and low enough in calories to prevent obesity. If you smoked I would of course tell you that you should quit at once.

Body temperature varies from the head to the toes. The feet tend to be considerably cooler than the face. At night the circulation slows down, and since the feet and legs are farthest from the heart, they cool the most. Cool muscles are more inclined to cramp. Many readers have written in to tell me about the good results they have gotten from using warm socks.

Don't use a heating pad or something like that to warm your feet as it may get too hot while you are asleep and burn you. With poor circulation, if that is your problem, that would cause you serious difficulties. Let me know how you get along.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Losing Weight" booklet.

"Can we have Chicken Little soup for lunch?"

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Jan. 16, the 16th day of 1975. There are 349 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1920, the 18th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution went into effect. Prohibition became law.

On this date — In 1778, France recognized U.S. independence.

In 1816, Portugal's South American colony, Brazil, became a kingdom.

In 1883, the U.S. Congress passed a bill creating the Civil Service.

In 1893, U.S. Marines landed in Hawaii to restore order in a revolution in which the islands' monarchy was overthrown.

In 1942, screen star Carole Lombard and 21 other airliner passengers were killed in a crash near Las Vegas, Nev.

In 1944, in World War II, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower arrived in London to take command of the Allied invasion force.

Ten years ago: Sir Winston Churchill was reported in serious condition in London after suffering a stroke.

Five years ago: Viet Cong guerrillas invaded a hamlet near My Lai in South Vietnam and killed 16 villagers.

One year ago: There was rioting in Indonesia, protesting a visit by Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

Today's birthdays: Musical comedy star Ethel Merman is 66. Auto racer A. J. Foyt is 40.

Thought for today: An error is a blunder when it is repeated. — Anonymous.

Caucus rejects Hebert, Poage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two powerful House committee chairmen—F. Edward Hebert of Armed Services and W.R. Poage of Agriculture—were ousted today by the Democratic caucus.

Democrats emerging from the caucus on voting for the 21 House chairmen said Hebert was rejected 152 to 135 and Poague lost 143 to 141.

They thus became the third and fourth chairmen to suffer in a growing assault on the venerable seniority system in the House.

The Democratic Steering Committee earlier had recommended stripping chairmanships from Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., and Wayne Hays, D-Ohio. The caucus has yet to vote on these recommendations.

Poage had been recommended for re-appointment as the chairman by the Steering Committee. Under caucus rules the committee now has five days in which to nominate another candidate for the Agriculture chairmanship. Others can be nominated in opposition.

The steering committee voted Wednesday to replace Patman, an 81-year-old Texas Democrat, as chairman of the House Banking Committee with Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis. The panel also nominated Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., to replace Hays, an Ohio Democrat, as chairman of the House Administration Committee.

By only two votes, the leadership-dominated steering panel renominated Rep. W.R. Poague, D-Tex., as chairman of the Agriculture Committee and Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., as chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Some members predicted that Poague and Hebert would lose when the more liberal caucus of all House Democrats took up their renominations.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., said Patman's defeat would hurt Hebert's chances.

"It would be an absolute travesty if Patman were ditched and Hebert were not," asserted Eckhardt, saying he was referring to the manner in which the two chairmen treated their committee members.

"Hebert treats some of his like dirt," Eckhardt said, specifically mentioning an instance where Hebert publicly made sexually oriented remarks to committee member Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.

"The walls are tumbling," said Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., a leader of the move by freshmen members to challenge the seniority system and make chairmen who were accountable to the full Democratic membership.

A veteran member of the steering panel predicted a "ripple effect."

"If you shoot down barons, you might as well shoot them all down," he said.

Brademas, Speaker Carl Albert, and Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill denied that the leadership had engineered the upsets of Patman and Hays.

Seniors Claire Lemons and Paul Swinger were approved for early graduation by the board.

Hill reported that the remainer of December bills, totaling $71,172, were paid.

Enrollment in the district is now 2,222 students, an increase of 28 over this time last year, he said.
